ETHIOPIANS HOSTILE IN SOMALILAND

Second Armed Attack on Italian Post Made Within a Month

HEAVILY DEFEATED BY REINFORCEMENTS

ROME, Dec. 7 (AP).—A strongly worded Italian protest—the second in as many months—was made to the Ethiopian Government today, after armed bodies of Ethiopians attacked Ussal, Italian Somaliland. The assault, Stefani News Agency dispatches reported, took place on December 5, and the attackers, said to have had machine guns and artillery, were driven off only after reinforcements were rushed to the isolated Italian garrison at the wells of Ussal.

As was the case three weeks ago when an armed group attacked the Italian Consulate at Gondar, near Lake Tana, the Italian minister at Addis Ababa made energetic representations to the Government of Emperor Haile Selassie, it was announced.

The new clash between Italian and Abyssinian forces served to recall rumors recently of impending conflict in Africa, and the heavy reinforcements Italy sent to her colonies in North Eastern Africa.

HEAVILY DEFEATED

The Italian dispatches said the Dubat troops manning the garrison at Ussal "resisted until the arrival of reinforcements from neighboring posts. The attackers were then heavily defeated and fled."

The Ethiopians, it was reported, abandoned quantities of "arms, munitions, tents and horses, and cleared out of the zone for a radius of about ten miles. The necessary dispositions have been taken to avoid further incidents on that frontier."

The attack on the Gondar Consulate in November was led by the Abyssinian chief of police of that town.

COLD WEATHER CLAIMS LIVES

Winter Storms Sweep U.S. Mid-West—Tree Kills Three Men in Bus

CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (AP).—Winter storms and zero chills smote sharply across the Northern States from the Cascades to the Adirondacks today, taking a tax of human lives as they struck.

On the westward slope of Snoqualmie Pass in Washington State, a casual walk in the snow, and yet it crashed upon a motor bus, killing three men and injuring a woman dangerously.

An eighty-two-year-old farmer froze to death in a cornfield near Sioux City, Iowa, where temperatures were near zero.

In Michigan, five persons died of burns, when stoves became overheated, and a sixth was the victim of an accident while shovelling snow.

PERISHES IN WOODS
An elderly woman died of pneumonia in the fastness of Wisconsin's north woods.

A bright sun, blinding on the fresh snow that overlaid most of the Midwestern plains, started temperatures up from way down and zero in Minnesota, the Dakotas and their neighbor states to the south, but the zero spell was spreading eastward across Michigan and on into the East.

Rochester, Minn., held bottom place with 24 below zero.

NOMINATED IN YALE

PENITENTON, Dec. 7 (CP).—Charles E. Oliver, son of the late John Oliver, former Premier of British Columbia, has been selected as Liberal standard-bearer for Yale riding in the next Federal election.

"GIVE A JOB"

ON the receiving end of the telephones at Garden 2411 and Empire 1931 are officials of the Victoria branch of the Employment Service of Canada, who can call dozens of capable men and women, each anxious to find a little added work at Christmas time. It may be work for an hour, a day, or a week; each order means happiness for some person and for some home. Casual work is scarce, and yet it is from just such odd jobs that these men and women seek to earn a little extra money to provide a few simple comforts in their homes at Yuletide. Sums thus spent go into immediate circulation within the community.

Giant Air Liner for Trans-Pacific Service

Its construction guarded with the greatest secrecy over a period of two years, the giant flying clipper, No. 5, has at last been shown. It was revealed for the first time to a small group of aviation executives and experts at Baltimore, Md. No. 5 was built for trans-Pacific use by the Pan-American Airways. It will take the air, with its full crew and fifty passengers.

Pipeline Extensions To Sidney Proposed As Joint Enterprise

Advances Proposal For Development

J. CARL PENDRAY
HOSE scheme for the extension of the city's waterworks system to Sidney is now being considered as a public works project to be undertaken jointly by city, Provincial and Dominion Governments.

Traffic in Seattle Is Disrupted

SEATTLE, Dec. 7 (AP).—A heavy blanket of fog tonight caused a score or more traffic accidents on Seattle streets, in several of which persons were injured. A transport plane flying from Portland was compelled to land at Sandpoint Field late in the day when Boeing Field was covered with mists, and night schedules were cancelled.

The Ballard-Squamish ferry ran aground near its Ballard slip and the passengers had to be taken off with rowboats when it could not be moved. Twenty cars remained aboard.

Dominion Decides to Pay Province Added Subsidy of $750,000

Hon. Grote Stirling Announces Interim Grant Pending Investigation of Provincial Claims—Dean Brock to Head Harbor Board

VANCOUVER, Dec. 7.—British Columbia will receive, by way of an additional interim subsidy this year, the sum of $750,000 from the Dominion Government, Hon. Grote Stirling, Minister of National Defence and acting Minister of Fisheries, announced today at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Conservative Association.

At the same time, Mr. Stirling, in his first public statement in British Columbia since his appointment to the Federal Cabinet, announced acceptance of the resignation of Sam McCloy, as chairman of the Vancouver Harbor Board, effective at the end of this month, and the appointment of Dean R. W. Brock, of the faculty of science of the University of British Columbia, to succeed him.

TO INVESTIGATE CLAIMS
In making the announcement of the increased subsidy, Mr. Stirling stated he had received a message from Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, in which the Premier stated he had been impressed by the fact that

Ex-Mayor J. Carl Pendray Places Scheme Before City Mayor—Would Develop Entire Saanich Peninsula—Combined City, Provincial and Dominion Government Project Possible

EXTENSION of the city's waterworks system to the far limits of Saanich, beyond the boundary into the unorganized district of North Saanich, and thence into the town of Sidney, and possibly over to James Island loomed, yesterday, as a possible joint city, Provincial and Dominion Government project of public works.

TWO BUGBEARS ARE DESTROYED

Nova Scotians Reassured on Questions of Secession and Tariff Oppression

HALIFAX, Dec. 7 (CP).—Nova Scotians for the most part went to their beds tonight unaware that the two bugbears of "secession" and "deliberate tariff oppression" had been definitely laid, in so far as they can be laid by a royal commission. Tomorrow they will be asked to find that the report of the commission, charged with investigating the economic ills of the province, and released tonight by Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Premier of Nova Scotia, removed both from the realm of practical politics.

THE COMMISSION
The commission was made up of J. H. Jones, head of the department of commerce of the University of Leeds, chairman; Alex Johnston, C.M.G., former deputy minister of marine, and Harold A. Innes, professor of economic geography in the University of Toronto.

The commission found that secession, judging from the economic standpoint, would be "sheer folly," and expressed the belief that, while the Canadian tariff on the whole had reacted unfavorably upon the Ex-Mayor J. Carl Pendray has placed the scheme before Mayor David Leeming as a means of not only relieving the unemployment situation, but as an avenue of new revenue for the city, through the extra sale of millions of gallons of water and the agricultural development of the entire Saanich Peninsula.

JOINT ENTERPRISE
The project would become a joint enterprise by virtue of the fact that North Saanich and Sidney are unorganized territories under the direct administration of the Provincial Government. The Dominion Government would be expected to join in the enterprise, since it already is prepared to extend the Saanich water main to the base of Little Saanich Mountain in order to give the observatory there an adequate water supply.

Mr. Pendray, in announcing the scheme, said he did so because,

WILL CONTINUE OCEAN SEARCH

U.S. Naval Authorities Still Keep Faint Hope of Rescuing Uim

HONOLULU, Dec. 7 (AP).—Refusing to give up hope of finding alive Lieutenant Charles T. P. Uim and his two fellow-Australian airmen, lost at sea since Tuesday, the United States naval authorities decided today to continue the search with the aid of surface boats and airplanes. The decision was announced by Rear-Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant at the Pearl Harbor naval base, after a two-hour conference with men who have hunted the ocean four days for the aviators forced down on the flight from Oakland, Cal.

THOROUGHLY COVERED
"The area to a radius of 250 to 350 miles from Oahu Island has been covered thoroughly in the search by naval and coastguard vessels and army and navy planes," said Admiral Yarnell. Conditions of visibility during the search were very good to excellent, and the spacing of search vessels and planes such that the plane would have been sighted if afloat in that area.

"It was the feeling of the conferees that the chances of the plane still being afloat are very slight."

The Pearl Harbor conference was attended by P. W. Turner, British Consul, as well as high naval and army officers.

REWARD OFFERED

HONOLULU, Dec. 7 (AP).—A reward of $6,000 was offered today, on behalf of the Australian Government, by William P. Turner, British Consul, to spur the search for Lieut. Charles T. P. Uim, Co-Pilot George Littlejohn and Navigator J. L. Skilling, forced down on the ocean, Tuesday, in a flight from Oakland, Cal. Turner announced $5,000 will be paid for rescue of any or all alive, and $1,000 for any or all bodies, or for any definite wreckage.

GIVEN POWER OF DIRECTION

President Frank Patterson to Carry On Affairs of Conservative Party

VANCOUVER, Dec. 7 (CP).—The affairs of the Conservative Party in British Columbia were put under the direction of Dr. Frank Patterson, Vancouver, in his capacity as president of the British Columbia Conservative Association, by the annual meeting of that body, today.

The action was taken after the meeting voted down a proposal to hold a convention within two months for the purpose of choosing a leader.

FAVORED CONVENTION
Vancouver Island delegates, debated vigorously in favor of an early convention and mustered ten votes in support of their contention.

The resolution widening the powers of President Patterson, presented by J. A. Fraser, M.P., Cariboo, declared that "until a provincial convention is held the president shall have authority to speak for, direct and carry on the affairs of the Conservative Party in this Province."

Dr. Patterson was endorsed by several speakers as one of those who would make a capable leader if he were chosen by a convention. After his re-election with widened powers, he said:

"PERSONAL SACRIFICE"
"My main ambition and interest is my professional work, and any small incursions into political work is my relaxation. I am accepting the position at considerable personal sacrifice, but I think that in these times it is the duty of all of us to assume our full responsibilities of citizenship."

Nominating Dr. Patterson for re-election, R. L. Maitland, former minister without portfolio, said he had to meet a man who, body and soul, had given such effective energy to the work in which Dr. Patterson was engaged. Dr. Patterson was elected by acclamation, as were other members of the executive. The other officers, unchanged from the past year, with the exception of the fourth vice-president, are as follows:

OTHER OFFICERS
First vice-president, R. A. Wootton, Victoria; second vice-president, Frank Hassard, Esquimalt; third vice-president, Miss Edith Macfarlane, Vancouver; fourth vice-president, G. A. Smith, Chilliwack; fifth vice-president, E. C. Carson, Pavilion; sixth vice-president, Mrs. S. R. Bowden, Esquimalt; secretary, F. D. Maitland.

JAGUARS KEEP HUNTERS ALOFT

Five Take to Trees and Have to Stay There Three Days

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Dec. 7 (CP).—The story of five farmers, treed for three days and nights by a family of hungry, striped jaguars, reached here, today, from the upper reaches of the Demerara River, after their rescue by a search party.

The men, on a hunting trip, slung their hammocks between trees and were awakened about midnight by the hunting jungle call of the British Guiana tiger. They took to the trees, while a tiger, tigress and three cubs snarled below them.

In their scramble to gain sudden altitude and safety, they left their guns standing against a nearby tree.

The male and the female tiger took turns keeping vigil, while the other went in quest of food to keep the family supplied during the prolonged siege.

A search party, alarmed by the three-day absence of the hunters, came upon them and had little difficulty in routing the beasts.

Cities Laid In Ruins by Earthquake

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 7 (AP).—Eleven cities with a total population of 30,000, were laid in ruins by the earthquakes in the Copan District, official reports today revealed.

Destroyed by the quakes were the towns of Santa Rita, Cabanas, Copan, Copan, San Antonio, Paraiso, Concepcion, Santa Fe, La Encarnacion, San Fernando, and San Jorge.

A large mountain in the neighborhood of Santa Rosa was reported sinking yesterday. Reliable but unconfirmed reports here said Omola Mountain, the most westerly and highest peak in the Ocotepoque District, fifty miles from the Honduras-Salvador-Guatemala borders, erupted today.

POST SOARS TO RECORD HEIGHT

Noted Aviator Believes He Climbed to 55,000 Feet in Stratosphere Plane

BARLEWILLE, Okla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Wiley Post made his second hop toward the stratosphere in the remodeled monoplane, Winnie Mae, today, and landed with the belief he had set a new altitude record around the 55,000-foot level.

"I went higher than I did last Monday by 5,000 to 7,000 feet," the globe flyer said, after bringing the Winnie Mae to a perfect landing downwind with a dead stick.

This would indicate he soared 55,000 to 57,000 feet. Examination of his barographs after Monday's flight indicated he reached some 50,000 feet.

Post landed at Phillips Airport, after 2 hours and 26 minutes aloft. The present altitude record of 47,352 feet is held by Lieutenant Renato Donati, of Italy.

Post estimated his net air speed, at the peak of his flight, as from 350 to 475 miles per hour.

Bitter Feeling Between Nations Is Manifest in Speeches at League Session—Benès Declares Little Entente Will Fight If Attempt Made to Break Up Alliance

Jugoslavia Decides to Expel Hungarians With Less Speed

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—Warlike talk flung back and forth among Southeastern Europe's statesmen, tonight, spurred efforts of the big Powers, working through the League of Nations, to put the lid on the bitter controversy between Yugoslavia and Hungary.

A sensation-filled session of the League Council, called into extraordinary session to consider Yugoslavia's charge that Hungary was implicated in the assassination of her King Alexander, at Marseille, October 9, saw Geneva's peace activities shift suddenly from South America to Southeastern Europe.

The day's exciting developments included:

1. The statement by Eduard Benès, Czech Foreign Minister, that the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—will fight if any nation tries to break up that alliance.

HATCHED IN AMERICA

2. An assertion by Tiber Eckhardt, Hungarian delegate, that Alexander was sentenced to death, not in Hungary, as Yugoslavia maintains, but in America. (He said later Croats meeting in Youngstown, Ohio, and Buenos Aires favored the assassination.)

STRIVING AFTER KNOCKOUT BLOW

Paraguayans Launch Drive in Chaco Which May Have Decisive Result

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 7 (AP).—A Paraguayan drive in the Pilcomayo sector of the Chaco, launched despite the near approach of the rainy season in an effort to strike the knockout blow in the long war, tonight apparently had Bolivia's Port Dorobny in extreme peril.

The fall of Dorobny, located on the left bank of the Pilcomayo River, would leave the way open for General Jose Estigarribia's forces to drive directly at Villamontes, major Bolivian army base, sixty miles away.

Behind Dorobny lie Bolivia's rich oil fields and the territory of Bolivia proper, and military circles here believed Estigarribia, reaching that objective, might force the La Paz Government to sue for peace.

DISCOUNT IN ADVANCE

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 7 (AP).—A Bolivian announcement today said troops in the Chaco, in view of the tactical situation, had been ordered to retreat in some sectors, abandoning positions without further strategic value.

"The enemy will occupy the territory abandoned by these units," the announcement said, "and will try, as was the case with Forts Ballivian and Guachalla, to distort the facts, presenting them to the (Paraguayan) public as victories."

AGREE TO ACT
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP).—The end of the Chaco war hinged tonight on acceptance by Paraguay and Bolivia of the League of Nations' peace plan before December 20.

In a note to the League the United States today agreed to act with other American republics in executing the plan.

Both Paraguay and Bolivia have the League's plan under consideration and are expected to inform Geneva of their decision within the next few days.

JUROR'S COAT IS STOLEN AT TRIAL

Judge Comments on Scandalous Affair—Asks Counsel to Suggest Compensation

VANCOUVER, Dec. 7 (CP).—A juror's report that his overcoat had been stolen while he was attending a trial in Supreme Court indicates "a scandalous state of affairs," Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald commented today.

After ascertaining that officials had been unable to find the missing garment, His Lordship requested counsel engaged in the case to inform the Attorney-General that he considered the juror should be compensated for his loss.

The coat was taken from the jury room while the jury was in court.

Rate and Property Reductions in City Equal to Six Mills

Three-Year Survey of Assessment Revisions Discloses Cut Tantamount to $221,772 Off Taxes—Work Started by Department on 1936 Roll

THE net reductions in assessments on city land and improvements during the last three years amount to $6,367,012, which is equivalent to a 5.5 mill reduction in taxes, it was stated by George O'kell, city assessor, yesterday, when announcing that work had been started on revising the assessment rolls for 1936.

The net reduction from 1932 to 1933 was $1,948,084; while from 1933 to 1934 the reduction amounted to $2,845,145; and from 1934 to 1935, $1,573,783.

Reduced to taxation figures, these cuts in the assessments during the three-year period are tantamount to a reduction of $221,772.71 in taxes, based on one mill raising approximately $41,000.

New Lecture Group On Natural History Is Inaugurated Here

Mrs. Viola Garfield, of Seattle University, Gives First of Addresses Sponsored by Carnegie Corporation—Tells About Indian Dances

WHAT promises to be a singularly interesting series of natural history lectures, in a programme for adult education, had its inception here, last evening, when Mrs. Viola E. Garfield, of the University of Washington Department of Anthropology, Seattle, told an audience at the Provincial Natural History Museum something about the "Cannibal Dancers and Grotesque Art" of the aboriginal tribes of the Northern Pacific Coast.

F. B. Kermod, archivist of the Museum, introduced the chairman, Major H. B. King, who in turn, representing the Hon. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, introduced the speaker, at the same time explaining that these lectures, nine more of which are already arranged for the winter months, were financed by the Carnegie Corporation of New York. It was to this same organization that British Columbia was indebted for the travelling library plan working so successfully in the Fraser River Valley; and for the high praise accorded the Provincial natural history collection by the experts sent over to Canada two years ago to make a study of the Dominion's museums. It was, as the result of this survey, that the Carnegie Corporation had established a Canadian committee with provision of annual funds for upkeep of the work. Mr. Kermod being appointed a member of the committee.

At the close of the lecture the audience was invited to visit the anthropological exhibit downstairs, when Mrs. Garfield indicated, in detail, some of the points to which she had already referred, in respect of Indian masks, blankets, totem carvings, hunting weapons, and articles of ceremonial dress.

DANCES SEASONAL
Indian ceremonial dances were shown to be seasonal, confined almost entirely to the winter months when the tribes were back in their villages after their fishing and hunting and food-gathering. By the end of November the celebrations would begin, very often being associated with the initiation of a son or nephew into the order of the cannibal dancers or the dog-eaters, and very often connected with the supernatural beings who were supposed to come back to the villages about the time the Indians returned from their summer expeditions.

Quite a high degree of dramatic and craft skill was shown in the preparation for these ceremonies. The initiate, spirited away for days prior to the great event, probably usually spent the time in the secret room of the order, at the back of the big assembly hall, there perfecting himself in some of the dances and songs. In this same secret room were stored all the paraphernalia connected with the rites; the beautiful carved and painted boxes containing the cedar masks, the Chicah blankets, the carved spoons, the colicah grease, specially laid aside for the festivities; the wooden masks, rattles and whistles required in connection with the dramatic representations. Here, too, the composers of the songs and those engaged in the production end of the ceremonial would do their work, as was one of the many interesting subjects.

Mrs. Garfield devoted the first part of her talk to a description of the Indian dances, religious and secular, and the second part to their art, for the latter using a very fine succession of lantern slides picturing their totems and other carvings.

EXPLOSION OF BALKAN POWDER KEG FEARED

3. The charge made by Bogoljub Yevitch, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, that the conspiracy against Alexander was "organized and nourished in Hungary," with the direct protection of Hungarian authorities.

STRIVING FOR PEACE

With ever-growing tension between Hungary and Yugoslavia reported as a result of the latter's expulsion of thousands of Hungarians, the major powers this evening were striving to keep the Balkans, "the powder keg of Europe," from blowing up again.

Benes did not hesitate to use the word "war" several times as he lashed out at present and prospective enemies of the powerful Little Entente, asserted conspirators were seeking to smash the new countries set up after the Great War, and charged plots brewed "on the Northern Hungarian frontier" were directed against Czechoslovakia.

The Czechoslovak statesman, whose diplomacy was largely responsible for creating the Little Entente, referred to the suggestion of Twifk Ruzhdi Bey, Turkish delegate, that an agreement to combat terrorism be formed, and said:

"If such a treaty existed today between the Little Entente and Hungary, the terrorist acts of which Yugoslavia was a victim would make Hungary an aggressor, and the Little Entente would have the right to defend themselves by their armed forces."

Declaring that Soviet Russia stood ready to back the Little Entente against an aggressor—defined in their agreement as a nation which supported or protected armed bands—Benes said "war between Yugoslavia and Hungary would have been a dolorous and horrible reality" had Alexander's assassination occurred before the Great War or before the existence of the League.

"If in the future," he continued, "anybody strikes at the United Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania, catastrophe will surely come."

POLITICAL MANOEUVRE

Earlier, Eckhardt, for Hungary, characterized Jugoslovakia's charges (backed by Jugoslovakia and Rumania) that his nation nurtured terrorism, as "merely a political manoeuvre against Hungary."

The statement brought Nicolas Titulescu, Rumanian Foreign Minister, springing to his feet in the packed council chamber to demand that the Little Entente, since it had been attacked, be given the right to defend itself.

"Ministers and kings may be assassinated," he exclaimed, "but our right of defence can not be stifled." He demanded continuance of the session into next week.

Eckhardt asserted that the Marcellus murders were not plotted in Hungary and that the assassin never lived in Hungary.

CONDEMNED TO DEATH

"A secret terrorist organization which had its headquarters in Jugoslovakia" prepared the assassination, the Hungarian said, adding "Alexander was condemned to death by Croats and terrorist organizations which existed outside Hungary."

"Croat newspapers spoke of this assassination, and at Croat meetings in America the death sentence passed on the king was pronounced." (Subsequently, Eckhardt explained he had been informed "last summer" in Youngstown, Ohio, that a big Croat meeting attended by several thousands was held and a death sentence upon the king was announced and cheered." He said Croats meeting in Buenos Aires took similar action.)

STUDENTS TO DEMONSTRATE

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press) SZEGED, Hungary, Dec. 7.—A riotous demonstration against Jugoslovakia by Hungarian university students here, today, heightened tension growing out of Jugoslovakia's expulsion of thousands of Hungarians.

With many of the desolate refugees sheltered in this beautiful border town, Hungary's second city, representatives of the Budapest Government this evening were busy taking testimony concerning last night's excursions across the border by armed Jugoslovians.

Heavy police guards, held ready for emergencies, kept watchful eyes on the students today as parading in disorderly fashion before the Greek Orthodox Church, they shouted "Down with Jugoslovakia."

sang the national anthem and waved Hungarian flags.

DOLEFUL PARADE

A doleful parade of refugees from the Slav kingdom—men, women and children, some of them babes in arms, some decrepit with age, some ill, lame or blind—had ceased tonight, but the tense border region through which rumors flew in ominous fashion, did not know when it would be renewed.

The Government commission, taking depositions from witnesses of the border forays, received sworn statements in which were described numerous alleged excursions into Hungarian territory by "Chetniks," armed Serb forces.

SORTIE TO RECONNOITRE

The first of the invasions, the commission was informed, took place near Szeged, the night of November 25, when Chetniks, bearing arms and leading army wolfhounds on leashes, penetrated 300 yards within Hungarian territory. The alleged purpose of the sortie was to reconnoitre.

A second such invasion occurred Tuesday night, the sworn statements said, and the Chetniks, wearing the emblem of the skull and crossbones, shouted threats and imprecations at Hungarians.

TO MAKE LESS HASTE

BELGRADE, Dec. 7 (AP).—The hue and cry raised over Jugoslovakia's unceremonious ejection of un-naturalized Hungarians may lead to less haste in future expulsions, it was indicated tonight.

While the Government stood firm in its purpose to oust the Hungarians who, it charges, have lived in Jugoslovakia sixteen years without taking out citizenship papers, several officials said they henceforth may be given more time in which to leave.

The Belgrade Government believes its action entirely legal, but desires to avoid criticism abroad, it was hinted.

Earlier, the Foreign Ministry emphatically denied that Jugoslov troops had crossed the Hungarian frontier, and asserted "there has been no mobilization whatever of our troops on the Hungarian frontier."

IN SPECIAL SESSION

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 7 (AP).—A special session of the Hungarian Cabinet, called to consider the situation growing out of Jugoslovakia's expulsion of Hungarians, was followed tonight by an appeal for contributions to care for the refugees.

Inasmuch as the Cabinet issued no communication assailing the Jugoslov action, it was believed the Government, which already has appealed to the League of Nations, wished to allow highly excited public opinion to calm before taking further action.

Arrival of more refugees tonight swelled the official total of those who have already crossed the border to 2,436, although reports from various cities where they found shelter indicated the number was considerably larger. Fifty-six reached the border town of Kelebia this evening, while 272 arrived at Szeged.

Official circles characterized the situation as grave, and newspapers were ordered not to publish details of the number or condition of the arrivals in order not to inflame public opinion.

DECLINES TO COMMENT

ROME, Dec. 7 (AP).—While the Government declined to comment pending arrival of official reports, Italy tonight viewed with grave concern the situation growing out of Jugoslovakia's expulsion of Hungarians.

A Government spokesman said that the Government had not been officially advised of the reported violation of the Hungarian frontier by armed Jugoslovians, but commented that much might be expected in the situation.

Recalls Sixty Years Of Canadian History

Still Active. Kingston Lawyer Reveals Incidents During the Life of Sir John A. Macdonald, First Prime Minister of Canada

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP).—His recollections going back far beyond the collections going back far beyond the first Prime Minister of Canada, lost his seat in the House of Commons on the judgment of the court in a corrupt practices suit, Joseph B. Walkem, K.C., LL.D., local master of chancery, celebrated his ninety-second birthday anniversary on November 24.

Dr. Walkem was a lawyer of thirty-two when his brother and partner, Richard T. Walkem, was counsel for Sir John at the trial. The Macdonald Government had resigned in 1873 over the Pacific scandal. In the general election, late that year, the Liberal forces, under Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, had triumphed, but Sir John was returned as member for Kingston, by a small majority.

Dr. Walkem recalls Sir John remarking to him he was glad the presiding judge, Chief Justice Richards, had been a Liberal, because no one could point a finger and say there was favoritism, should the petitioner's case be thrown out. The petition succeeded, however, and the seat was declared vacant. In the by-election which followed, the former premier was re-elected, again with a small majority.

In his younger days, Dr. Walkem was an active participant in various sports. Until eight years ago he took an active interest in lawn bowling and curling. He attributes his good health to regular habits. Dr. Walkem is six months older than his good friend, Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario.

PLEASANT MEMORIES
Sixty years have elapsed since the Macdonald election trial and the veteran Kingston lawyer is still actively engaged in the practice of his profession. He has pleasant memories of those times. Men who became great in the history of Canada and have passed on were Dr. Walkem's legal friends—Sir John Macdonald; Alexander Campbell, one time minister of justice; Oliver Mowat, then Ontario's premier, and Richard J. Cartwright, later a member of the Laurier Cabinet. They were all Kingston men.

FAVORED JUDGE
Dr. Walkem recalls Sir John remarking to him he was glad the presiding judge, Chief Justice Richards, had been a Liberal, because no one could point a finger and say there was favoritism, should the petitioner's case be thrown out. The petition succeeded, however, and the seat was declared vacant. In the by-election which followed, the former premier was re-elected, again with a small majority.

GOVERNMENT HOPEFUL
Not yet officially advised of the interim increase in Federal subsidy from $874,561 to $1,624,561 yearly, Premier Pattullo and members of the British Columbia Government contented themselves with expressions of satisfaction in that the subject was currently under review.

British Columbia presented a non-political brief for review of the terms upon which it had entered Confederation, in a case ably advanced by Attorney-General Sloan, K.C. The full measure of relief sought, however, was for sums in the neighborhood of $8,000,000, accumulated on a retroactive basis, in respect to subsidies and other grants.

COSTS HAVE GROWN
The present subsidy received by the Province, from the Dominion, amounts to $874,561, made up of $29,151 in interest on debt existing at 1871; $190,000 annually towards the cost of Government, which cost has now grown to nearly $300,000; $355,410 yearly on a per capita basis, and $100,000 in respect to land grants made to the Dominion at Confederation.

To this will now be added $750,000 yearly, in an interim subsidy, the basis of which has not yet been set out.

OUTWITTING CROOKS
WINNIPEG.—The puzzling twang of Scotch dialect is being employed to outsmart gangsters. George Smith, Winnipeg Scotch chief of police, ordered the dialect used after it was made evident that bandits have equipped themselves with short-wave radios to listen in on orders to police prowler cars. There are enough Highlanders on the force to make the plan practical by having one officer who can understand Gaelic in each prowler car.

An education inspector was examining the children in a junior form. He said he would give a penny to any child who gave the best definition of the word he was about to write on the blackboard.

The word he wrote was "Jeopardizing," but no child at first had any definition to offer.

"Come, come now," said the inspector, "can't anyone tell me the meaning of the word?"

One small boy put up his hand. "Please, sir," he said, "Jeopardizing means anything that is done by the Jeopard."

Hostess (at children's party to small boy)—Well, my little man, how are you?
John (aged four)—Quite well, thank you, except for a bit of whooping cough.

Prelate of Melbourne Protests Roman Catholic Procession but Urges Calm

MELBOURNE, Aus., Dec. 7.—Charging his flock to refrain from "anything like violence or bitterness" during the Roman Catholic Eucharistic procession here Sunday, Most Rev. F. W. Head, Anglican archbishop and metropolitan of Victoria, has announced he has "protested privately" to those in authority against the proclamation of certain doctrines in the public streets.

Archbishop Head said he had made his protests to Roman Catholic leaders, to members of the city council and to the press. "If those who are responsible in that church and in that council reject those proposals," he advised the people of his diocese, "we must not do anything that is unworthy of our Master's cause. We must not do evil that good may come."

DECLARE OBJECTS

"Many Christian citizens are wondering what their attitude toward this event ought to be," Archbishop Head proceeded. "This procession differs from any ordinary religious procession or open-air service because its leaders have declared their object in the words: 'We will carry our Eucharistic King through the streets.' Such an enterprise is only rendered possible by a belief in transubstantiation.

"So long as this belief is confined to the service in a church we have no objections to make," the archbishop said. "That is toleration as we have learned it for centuries. But to organize a procession to proclaim this doctrine in the public streets is to challenge Christian Melbourne either to agree or to disagree."

STRAINING OF LAW

"I think it would have been more to the advantage of the Roman Catholic Church to have avoided doing something which to many people seems to be a straining of the law. We as Catholics Christians deny what will be approved on Sunday. We cannot find transubstantiation in the Bible. Our beliefs date from a time earlier than Paschasius Radbertus and Lanfranc, the Lateran Council of 1215, or the Council of Trent in 1563."

The mistress of the house took a friendly interest in her maid. One day she asked how her love affair was progressing.

"Oh, I've given that fellow up now," said the girl coldly.

The mistress expressed her regret and hoped the girl would be successful another time.

Two days later she saw her maid out with the same young man.

"Mary," she said in tones of surprise when the girl returned, "I thought you told me you had given up that young man?"

"That's right, ma'am. I have," said the girl airily, "but you see what it is, he hasn't finished working out his fortnight's notice yet."

Twenty Years Ago Naval Battle of Falklands Fought

Success of Sea Struggle Restored British Confidence in Royal Navy and Drove German Fleet From Sea—Historic Engagement Claimed Heroes of Both Fleets

By CAPTAIN W. W. MURRAY, M.C.
(Copyright, 1934, by The Canadian Press)

TWENTY years ago today the Battle of the Falkland Islands was fought—a naval engagement which, battled to a finish in the dismal wastes of the South Atlantic, cleared from the face of the seven seas the last vestige of Germany's maritime power.

A consequence of more than equal importance was the restoration to the British peoples of their faith in the Royal Navy; for their confidence had been rudely disturbed five weeks previously when, at Coronel, off the Chilean coast, the German Pacific squadron of Admiral von Spee had destroyed the squadron of Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, sinking the cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth with the loss of close to 1,500 men.

UNDER STURDEE

The news of Cradock's defeat had awakened the British Admiralty to the necessity of dealing decisively with von Spee. One of the earliest acts of Lord Fisher, who had succeeded Prince Louis of Battenberg as First Sea Lord, was to dispatch Rear-Admiral Sir Frederick Doveton Sturdee, chief of the Admiralty war staff, to the South Atlantic with a formidable squadron. The two first battle-cruisers built by Britain, Inflexible and Invincible, were withdrawn from the Grand Fleet, overhauled at Devonport and sent under Sturdee's command, to a secret rendezvous—Abrolhos Rock—off the coast of Brazil.

There Sturdee's squadron was completed; and when he steamed southward to the Falkland Islands he had under his command, in addition to the two battle-cruisers already mentioned, three armored cruisers, Carnarvon, Kent and Cornwall.

Sturdee's fleet arrived at the Falklands on the morning of December 7 and proceeded to coal. Canopus, Glasgow and Bristol were in the inner harbor, with Inflexible, Invincible, Carnarvon, Kent and Cornwall in the outer.

On the morning of December 8 the watchers on Signal Hill reported the approach of von Spee's fleet. The German sent a light vessel ahead to scout, and this ship reported having noted the presence of two British ships in Port Stanley. At once von Spee gave orders to prepare for battle, expecting to find only the remnants of Cradock's defeated fleet.

The Germans advanced in line, the Gneisenau leading, followed by the Nürnberg, the Scharnhorst, the Dresden and the Leipzig. Meanwhile, the British coaling operations were almost finished; orders had been issued to raise steam for full speed. About 9:30 a.m., von Spee came abreast of the harbor mouth and beheld, to his horror, not Cradock's "derelicts," but a fleet of British ships.

Sturdee's fleet, followed by the Glasgow, then the Carnarvon, the battle-cruisers and the Cornwall. At 10 o'clock the two forces were some twelve miles apart. It was a clear fresh day, with a bright sun and light northwest breezes inclining to calm. A stern chase ensued with Sturdee slackening the speed of Inflexible and Invincible to twenty knots to allow the cruisers to keep up. At that, however, the British had the measure of the Germans, whose vessels were befouled after months of cruising.

Appreciating that his own position was hopeless, von Spee divided his forces. The Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst continued due east; the Nürnberg, Dresden and Leipzig steered southwest. Three British warships, the Invincible, Inflexible and Carnarvon, pursued the two large enemy ships, while Kent, and the light cruisers Bristol and Glasgow. The last-named vessel had taken part in the Battle of Coronel, but succeeded in escaping the fate of the Good Hope and the Monmouth.

SEEK VON SPEE

The Admiralty anticipated that von Spee would enter the Atlantic either to continue his career of commerce-raiding, or, crossing to South Africa, operate against the South African troops then engaged in their conquest of German Southwest Africa. In one particular the Admiralty's assessment of the German admiral's intentions was correct.

A wireless message to H.M.S. Canopus, which had taken no part in the Coronel battle, being too slow to accompany Cradock, ordered this vessel to Port Stanley in the Falkland Islands, where, she was informed, she would be safe since the "new guns for the forts had already arrived." This message was intercepted by von Spee, as the Admiralty hoped, and, as the German commander interpreted it as a ruse to keep him away from the Falklands. He fell into the trap, and, leaving the Island of Juan Fernandez on November 15, he set his course southward and through the Straits of Magellan to Port Stanley.

BRITISH ARRIVE

Sturdee's fleet arrived at the Falklands on the morning of December 7 and proceeded to coal. Canopus, Glasgow and Bristol were in the inner harbor, with Inflexible, Invincible, Carnarvon, Kent and Cornwall in the outer.

On the morning of December 8 the watchers on Signal Hill reported the approach of von Spee's fleet. About 9:30 a.m., von Spee came abreast of the harbor mouth and beheld, to his horror, not Cradock's "derelicts," but a fleet of British ships.

THE FIRST OUT

First out was the Kent, followed by the Glasgow, then the Carnarvon, the battle-cruisers and the Cornwall. At 10 o'clock the two forces were some twelve miles apart. It was a clear fresh day, with a bright sun and light northwest breezes inclining to calm. A stern chase ensued with Sturdee slackening the speed of Inflexible and Invincible to twenty knots to allow the cruisers to keep up. ## DEFUNCT MINE UNDER INQUIRY

Glowing Reports Issued on Thompson Cadillac Before
Company Winds Up

TORONTO, Dec. 7 (CP).—A letter and an official report, noting good prospects for the Thompson Cadillac Mines, Limited, were sent out within two months before the mine went into voluntary bankruptcy. It was brought out in evidence here, today, at the inquiry of J. M. Godfrey, Ontario securities commissioner, into the company's affairs.

Mr. Godfrey was probing optimistic reports allegedly circulated before the concern went into voluntary bankruptcy in November.

A letter was written by G. S. Andrew, of Montreal, secretary-treasurer, to The Northern Miner, a Toronto mining publication, in October, giving confirmation by Philip Tear, manager of the mine, of optimistic statements regarding the mine. "I am definitely convinced the ore possibilities at

CHOOSE LIBERAL TO OPPOSE THE PREMIER

CALGARY, Dec. 7 (CP).—Percy L. Hyde, former member of the Saskatchewan Legislature for Maple Creek, tonight was chosen to carry the Liberal standard against Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in West Calgary Federal constituency, at the next general election. Rev. H. M. Horricks is the choice of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation.

The mistress of the house heard the bell ring and saw standing at the open front door a Chinese hawk. Quickly retreating, she called out to the maid:

"There's a Chinaman at the door. You go, Ella."

This was too much for the Chinaman, who struck his head well into the hall and shouted, indignantly: "You go 'Ella, yourself!"

CITY CLOSES TIMBER DEAL

Kapoor Lumber Co. Makes
Final Payment—Mortgage
Greatly Reduced

Completion of probably one of the most favorable transactions undertaken by the city for some time was achieved at the City Hall, yesterday, when officials of the Kapoor Lumber Co. presented a cheque to Alderman Andrew McGavin, chairman of the water committee, in final payment for timber rights on the Goldstream watershed.

The ceremony took place at a meeting of the water committee, and after the final payment, amounting to $19,250, had been made, votes of thanks were passed by the committee and extended to the officials of the company in appreciation for the manner in which the negotiations had been carried on, and for the very prompt payment of the sum for which the timber was sold.

REDUCE MORTGAGE

A total of $62,000 was paid by the Kapoor Lumber Co. for the timber, and this money has been applied to the reduction of the first mortgage against the property. As each payment has been made, the first mortgage has been reduced accordingly. At present, it stands at $348,000, so that when the $19,250 also is paid off the principal, the first mortgage will have been reduced to $328,750.

Alderman McGavin congratulated the lumber company officials upon the prompt payment, and explained that it had enabled the city to save a substantial sum of money in interest on the mortgage.

By an arrangement between the company and the city, the Kapoor Lumber Co. also will clean out the lower end of Jack Lake, on the Goldstream watershed, where stumps, under the water, are rotting and may cause the water to become tainted.

REFUSED TO BAR BOY FROM FILMS

English Magistrates Thought Some Productions "Not at All Bad" for Wayward Youngster

SOUTHEND, England.—It is not reasonable to prohibit a boy of fourteen from going to a cinema, according to the decision of the magistrates at Southend, despite the fact the boy's father had asked to have the ban imposed for two years. "You cannot expect it," said C. Hubbard, chairman of the board of magistrates. "Some of the films are not at all bad."

Eventually the magistrates made a condition that the boy, who was somewhat wayward, should not go to the pictures more than once every week in the next six months, and then the film should be approved by the father. However, they prohibited the lad smoking for two years.

JUGOSLAVIA AND HUNGARY

The tension between Yugoslavia and Hungary is becoming aggravated with the general order expelling Hungarian nationals from the former state. This tension grew following the assassination of King Alexander at Marseilles on October 9. On November 22, Yugoslavia dispatched a Note to the Council of the League of Nations requesting consideration of the assassination. It was intimated in that Note that police inquiries had disclosed information of a nature to disturb good understanding and peace between Yugoslavia and her neighbor, Hungary.

The crux of Yugoslavia's attitude towards Hungary at the present time lies in the belief that certain terrorist elements in the latter country are receiving the assistance and connivance of certain Hungarian authorities. This has been a growing belief entertained for some time before the Marseilles assassination. It has been the Yugoslav people to profound indignation and popular resentment. In their attitude they have the support of the Czechoslovak and Rumanian Governments, which have sent identical Notes to the League of Nations in the matter of the assassination of King Alexander.

It would appear that whatever has happened during the last week or so has rendered Yugoslavia doubtful about any action by the League of Nations. This is indicated by the general order for the expulsion of Hungarians from Yugoslav territory, and a wholesale act of this character, now in the undertaking, cannot fail to accentuate the differences that prevail between the two countries. Yugoslavia wants the League to take such action as will lead to the extradition of such men as Pavlovitch and Kvaternik from Italy, of Percevitich from Austria and of Servazzi, who is variously reported as under detention, missing and killed in prison in Hungary. Only a few weeks ago Yugoslavia, replying to Hungarian complaints, claimed there had only been thirty expulsions of Hungarian nationals from Yugoslav territory. At that time there was no general order for such expulsions. Now that seems to have been determined on, for there is a general exodus of Hungarians from Yugoslavia under military escort. Passions have been highly inflamed. If it is to prevent armed conflict in that part of Europe it would seem that the League of Nations must act quickly.

WAR IN THE CHACO

It seems too late for the League of Nations to intervene in the military situation in the Chaco, for the war there is, to all intents and purposes, at an end. The situation for Bolivia is a desperate one. Her troops have all but been forced out of the disputed territory. Her casualties number 40,000, and there are 16,000 Bolivian prisoners in Asuncion. She has won no victory of any magnitude in the fighting, although her troops outnumber those of Paraguay by two to one. The reason is that over 90 per cent of the Bolivian rank and file is composed of Indians who have little loyalty, and poor training as fighters.

The fact that the war still persists is due to the defenses at Ballivan, where there is a strongly-fortified line of trenches. Fort Ballivan has been taken, and this is perhaps the strategic position on a 186-mile front. How such a small army can hold such a front is one of the developments of modern warfare. The war may well be prolonged, but possibly the major fighting in it is at an end. When, if ever, the matter is strenuously dealt with by the League of Nations that organization will face the situation of Paraguayan unwillingness to renounce the reward of her military successes. She is determined not to allow Bolivia access to the sea by a port on the Pilcomayo River. Bolivia, on the other hand, is determined not to admit defeat by a State with one-third of her population. She is prepared to carry on fighting indefinitely, while would mean that one or other of the nations, and probably Bolivia, would suffer complete collapse. The League of Nations has been exceptionally dilatory in intervening in this dispute.

NO INFERIORITY COMPLEX

There are very few statements made affecting psychology that do not arouse controversy in these latter days of discursive thinking. General Smuts, in his brilliant speech at the dinner of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, referred to the victors of the last war and the "inferiority complex" of the vanquished. Complex, according to the modern definitions of psycho-logical terms, refers to "a system of ideas linked up with a conative and affective tendency which are in a state of repression and thus barred from consciousness. They manifest themselves indirectly by producing distortions in consciousness and disturbances in conscious activity, which, if taken at face value, may be very misleading and quite mystifying."

The foregoing is the language of a psychological expert. It is not particularly intelligible, but the same expert has the grace to explain what he means in more understandable language. He says an "inferiority complex" is a personal inferiority which an individual hides from himself as well as those around. This expert takes issue with General Smuts, and in an outright way, Germany, he says, is not suffering from an "inferiority complex" in the technical sense. She has no weakness which she is hiding from herself. "She has just the opposite," this expert says. "She has a feeling of fundamental worth and power, shown in her military success against overwhelming odds during the war. Nor has she an inferiority feeling. She has, however, a feeling that she is at a disadvantage in relation to her late enemies, and that she has been unjustly dealt with under the peace treaties, and was not the sole war-culprit. Her strong and untamed self-assertive instinct is reacting vigorously to the situation, and now that she is unified in her new political organization her aggressive and self-assertive tendencies can again show themselves in their true form. So far as these tendencies are kept in a state of repression they can produce conscientious anxiety, depression, and even delusions of persecution."

BOOKS WE READ

Dean Inge, though retired from active service in the Church of England, is far from inactive in his retirement. As a speaker and contributor to publications his industry seems indefatigable. The subjects he chooses for discussion are varied and on nearly all of them he has a point of view that compels attention. This is the case where he deals with what the people are reading. In an article contributed to the Church of England Newspaper, one of his sentences alone is arresting when he says that in literature "the dead lion is better than the live dog."

Dean Inge believes that most novel-reading is a mere way of starting a day-dream. It is a way of escape from life. This habit is one which he says should be carefully watched lest it rot the mind. He admits that there are many serious men who unbend their minds over detective stories, but he thinks that is better than playing cards for money. His advocacy is that old books are the best to read because they require more education and do more good. "Old wood to burn, old wine to drink, old friends to trust, and old books to read." Among the present-day generation he scents a national disgrace in the neglect of English classical literature.

At the same time Dean Inge urges that what is enjoyed should be read, and reading against the grain is a weariness of the flesh. He suggests that reading should be linked up with other interests, as it is impossible to enjoy what is alien to our thoughts and pursuits. To his mind the most valuable part of reading is when it is finished, the book laid down and the thinking it over is undertaken. The reading he advocates is that in which there is the sense of taking part in a debate. In that kind of reading there is the feeling of pitting our wits against a wiser man than ourselves, though that does not mean swallowing all that he writes. His concluding advice to readers is that they should choose their own favorites in literature, but "let them be men who viewed life nobly."

AFTON WATER

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes,
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.

Thou stock-dove whose echo resounds thro' the glen,
Ye wild whistling blackbirds in yon thorny den,
Thou cloud-crested lapping, thy screaming forbear,
I charge you disturb not my slumbering fair.

How lofty, sweet Afton, thy neighboring hills,
Far mark'd with the courses of clear, winding rills,
There daily I wander as noon rises high,
My flock and my Mary's sweetest out in my eye.

How pleasant thy banks and green valleys below,
Where wild in the woodlands the primroses blow;
There oft as mid evening weeps o'er the lea,
The sweet-scented birch shades my Mary and me.

Thy crystal stream, Afton, how lovely it glides,
And winds by the cot where my Mary resides;
How wondrous thy waters her snowy feet lave,
As gathering sweet flowers the stems thy clear wave.

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes,
Flow gently, sweet river, the song of my lays;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.

SEPARATION

Stop!—not to me, at this bitter departing,
Speak of the sure consolations of time!
Fresh be the wound, still-renewed be its smarting,
So but thy image endure in its prime!

But, if the steadfast commandment of Nature
Wills that remembrance should always decay—
If the loved form and the deep-cherished feature
Must, when unseen, from the soul fade away—

Me let no half-effaced memories cumber!
Fled, fled at once, be all vestige of thee!
Deep be the darkness, and still be the slumber—
Dead be the past and its phantoms to me!

Then, when we meet, and thy look strays toward me,
Scanning my face and the changes wrought there;
"Who," let me say, "is this stranger regards me,
With the grey eyes and the lovely brown hair?"

Through the gaunt woods the winds are shrilling cold.—Tennyson.

Soft blows the wind that breathes from that blue sky.—Coleridge.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

O yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill.—Tennyson.

Our attention was arrested this morning by an editorial paragraph in a contemporary newspaper. In that paragraph a statement was made that the Soviet government of Russia was the most firmly established of all the governments in the world. That statement may be true, for the government of Russia is established upon the will or the whim of a dictator, whereas in our country and some other countries governments are based upon the will of the people. In this country governments are compelled to consult the people at stated intervals. The governments of municipalities must appear before the electorate for judgment annually, the governments of the provinces and of the Dominion at intervals of four or five years.

We shall have a Canadian general election at some date yet to be determined during the coming year. All elections create a great deal of confusion, some of them much enthusiasm, every one of them considerable apprehension, and there is a general agreement that elections are not good for business. Practical politicians whose party happens to be in power would avoid elections if they could; practical politicians who are out of power welcome elections because they hope as a result of elections to gain power. During the past year the politicians of Canada who are out have been clamoring for an election in advance of the statutory term because they believe the conditions are favorable for the defeat of the government and because they fear that with the advance in time and the manifest improvement in business the conditions may change and become adverse to their prospects.

There are, therefore, disadvantages as well as advantages in popular systems of government. There are people who sincerely believe that periodical elections are disadvantages, if not actually nuisances. The advantage of a dictatorship such as that of Russia is that neither the government nor the people have to bother with elections. If there are people in Russia who dislike a government, they cannot destroy it by casting their ballots against it. They can obtain a change of government only by killing the dictator or some of his ministers. That method is drastic, and it is not always effective. If one dictator is murdered another dictator steps into his place and the business of the nation is not interrupted. Then under the Russian system if a leader or one of his ministers is assassinated, the dictatorship ordains that the crime can be expiated only by the instant execution of a couple of score of citizens, most of whom can only be suspected of connection with the crime.

That sort of thing cannot be done in Canada, although we have heard remarks upon the streets that it would be a good thing for the country if somebody would shoot R. B. Bennett. There are Liberal newspapers in Canada and writers for those newspapers who seem to believe that a Communist system of government would be preferable to the form of government we have had for the past four years. That is another disadvantage of popular government and of the necessity of periodical elections. On the eve of an election in times like the present reason is de-throned, unreason is enthroned and fanaticism raves. The Liberals are frantic because they believe an immediate election would be their opportunity, and that time may deprive them of that opportunity.

The established standards of civilization in Canada demand a system of government different from that of Russia. In Canada if one government is not satisfactory to the people it can be changed by the votes of the people. It cannot be altered by the bullet of an assassin. Liberal propagandists are constantly declaring that the Soviet system of government is undergoing modification and being reduced to some sort of conformity with the standards of civilization in more enlightened parts of the world. Yet the recent execution of three score and more Russians as an expiation of the offence of one man seems to us to demonstrate that if the government of that country is more firmly established than that of most countries, the permanence of its establishment is still dependent upon a form of terrorism abhorrent to the minds of any civilized people.

Nevertheless it seems to be true that the Soviet government has abandoned its initial purpose of converting all the nations of the world to the so-called principles of Communism, for it has been extending a friendly hand to other nations and professing a desire for international peace and amity. It has modified its views about capitalism, has re-established the wage system as necessary to the successful operation of industries. That change may be a sign of repentance, but who can be sure about what will eventually come out of Russia?

LIBERAL NOMINATING CONVENTION

Sir,—I am enclosing copy of a letter addressed to Mr. W. H. Kinsman, as chairman of the Liberal Nominating Convention recently held in Victoria, which is self-explanatory, and which I shall be glad if you will kindly publish in your paper.

R. A. NARRACOTT,
1348 Esquimalt Road, Esquimalt, B.C., December 6, 1934.

W. H. Kinsman, Esq.,
President Victoria Liberal Assn.,
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Sir,—As a delegate who was present at the Liberal Nominating Convention held in the Shrine Hall, Victoria, on November 19th last, I am calling your attention to an irregularity which occurred during that meeting.

A lady, who is a member of the Esquimalt Liberal Association, explained the function of trust companies to members of the Victoria Credit Granters' Association at their luncheon in the Douglas Cafe.

COMPANIES EFFICIENT
Mr. Clark told how many contacts had been mechanized in that people have sought means for eliminating human limitations in meeting their requirements. Some of these means have been of steel and steel, declared Mr. Clark. Others, he continued, have employed human factors, based on a new efficiency. The most efficient of these, the speaker felt, were trust companies.

"Trust companies are big business," continued the speaker. They have a fine moral and financial influence over the community. These companies, averred Mr. Clark, were formed by Eastern Canadians and are now well known over the entire world. However, he pointed out that Great Britain had not yet accepted corporate trustees in any general fashion.

Mr. Clark told of the extremely interesting subjects he had faced during his term as manager of the estates department. "We must be impersonal as well as intimate and personal," he stated.

SNAPPY SLOGANS
LONDON.—Sandwich men carrying snappy slogans paraded the Strand, Kingsway and Lincoln's Inn protesting against the wage rates of the Government employees at the Land Registry Office in Lincoln's Inn.

RISKS HIS LIFE
PLYMOUTH, England.—Chief Constable W. C. Johnson, of Plymouth, risked his life in saving a cat trapped midway down a sixty-foot cliff on the sea front here. He was lowered by a rope and with the cat in his arms hauled up again.

CROSSING OF VANCOUVER ISLAND
Sir,—During Thursday evening's Imperial Oil programme, the assertion was made that Adam Grant Thorne was the first white man to cross Vancouver Island.

On September 4, 1867, an expedition led by the Hon. J. P. Penner, surveyor-general to the Hudson's Bay Company, and accompanied by Lieut. T. Shercock Gooch, R.N., two bluejackets, two marines from H.M.S. Satellite, and an Inuit guide, crossed Vancouver Island. After experiencing considerable danger and hardships they arrived back in Victoria on September 22.

HEARTLESS MOTORISTS
Sir,—This afternoon a most distressing accident occurred outside my home, on the Sooke Road. A car ran over and fatally injured our Cairn terrier. It was not only a valuable animal, but very precious to us all. As I was not an actual witness of the occurrence, I attach no blame to the driver, but suggest she might have had the decency to stop and see the extent of the harm done. Evidently not one of the five ladies (?) in the car thought this necessary, although they slowed down and realized what had happened.

MRS. COGSWELL,
R.R. 2, Victoria, B.C., December 6, 1934.

GIVING LANTERN TALKS
Sir,—I should be grateful if you would include the following amongst new items in your paper:

Deaconess Margaret Robinson is in England, on holiday, for the next few months. Though she will travel about a good deal, letters will be forwarded to her from the following address: 162 West Hill, Putney Heath, London, S.W. 15, England.

Before returning, in the Spring, she hopes to give lantern talks in various parts of England on life and church work in the Diocese of British Columbia, with special reference to the work of religious education without training.

MARGARET E. ROBINSON,
Deaconess,
162 West Hill, Putney Heath, London, S.W. 15, November 21, 1934.

Benjamin Franklin was traveling in cold weather and saw no vacant place in the tavern where he could warm himself. He cried out the order, "Hail a peck of oysters in the shell for my horse!"

All the fireplace crowd rushed out to see a horse eat oysters. Soon they came back and told him his horse would eat oysters.

"Won't he?" asked Franklin, now comfortably seated by the fire. "Bring them in, then, and I'll eat them myself."

Nevertheless it seems to be true that the Soviet government has abandoned its initial purpose of converting all the nations of the world to the so-called principles of Communism, for it has been extending a friendly hand to other nations and professing a desire for international peace and amity. ## TRUST SERVICE OUTLINED HERE

S. J. D. Clark Addresses Credit Granters on Growth of Companies

"At a time when depression, shrinkage and distrust have lain like a pall over the face of economic affairs, trust service has shown a growth that would be calculated to attract attention even in a period of prosperity. This is less a matter of successful salesmanship than of public need. Trust service, therefore, is a human service, and it must be true to its name and inspire human trust."

Thus did S. J. D. Clark, manager of the estates department of the Royal Trust Company, here, yesterday explain the function of trust companies to members of the Victoria Credit Granters' Association at their luncheon in the Douglas Cafe.

Mr. Clark told how many contacts had been mechanized in that people have sought means for eliminating human limitations in meeting their requirements. Some of these means have been of steel and steel, declared Mr. Clark. Others, he continued, have employed human factors, based on a new efficiency. Among correspondence read was a letter from Dr. S. F. Tolmie stating his willingness to co-operate in any way possible.

The president was instructed by resolution to get suggestions from the district associations as to policies that should be adopted by the party and that he be authorized, if he sees fit, to appoint a policy committee.

POLICY COMMITTEE

The meeting commended the policy of the Conservative Government of Canada in having lowered interest rates on about 40 per cent of the debt of Canada through re-funding, and urged that the Government obtain a lower rate of interest on the remainder of the debt.

Approval was expressed of the manner in which Prime Minister Bennett had discharged the duties of his office and of the policies of his Government in general, and particularly of the benefits this Province had received from the Empire treaties.

Endorsement was given of the "progressive policies of the Dominion Government in connection with unemployment and social legislation," and provision for unemployment insurance was urged.

Virginia Vane Says:*THE HOME WRECKER ASKS FOR ADVICE

Dear Virginia Vane: For some time I was practically engaged, but was in no hurry to marry, so my fiancée tired of waiting and married someone else. I then realized my mistake and knew that I wanted the girl to come back to me. After some time I persuaded her to leave her husband and come back to me.

Now I am not sure that I want to marry her. My friends tell me that I am not doing myself justice in making such a choice. I have also heard rumors about her family which are not satisfactory. Yet I feel responsible for her in a way, and feel that if I turned her down anything might happen to her.

I am interested in another woman, older than myself, who has a business of her own and some little capital. She is trying to persuade me to give up this girl. I need your advice.—F.R.T.

It's a pity that the girl in the case couldn't read this frank confession of selfishness and realize how well rid she'd be of her great love. For then she'd be impelled to walk out on you, Mr. F.R.T., and perhaps go back to a sane and normal existence with a man who possibly has some conception of the word "love."

I am afraid you won't find any sympathy in this column for your desperate plight. From first to last you've behaved dishonorably, and the pity is that the girl should be punished more cruelly than you are. After all, her chief fault has been weakness. Apparently she is capable of unselfish love.

You had no right to start your campaign against her marriage. You weren't playing fair when you made your first move to get her back. You weren't in love with her. Your pride was hurt, your vanity plucked. You missed the constant assurance of her admiration and devotion. So you just broke up home to give yourself a good time.

When you'd accomplished everything satisfactorily, of course you had time to observe the flaws in your inamorata. Having won her, you no longer saw her as the beautiful unattainable. You listened judiciously to the advice of your friends, who convinced you that you would be marrying beneath you if you made this girl your wife. Actually, if they'd been worth-while friends, they'd have told you at that point that any girl was far too good for a systematic home wrecker like yourself.

And the other woman in the case has been helpful in making you realize that you've picked the wrong type. Other women are inclined to be ungenerous to their weak sisters. It doesn't occur to the other woman, naturally, that this deluded victim of yours has shown at least a real feeling in giving up everything for love. I wonder whether the brainy business woman would do so much for you. I certainly hope not.

And I personally hope that the girl won't marry you—for her own sake. You could never make her happy, nor indeed will you make any marriage a success unless you learn to care about another's happiness more than your own.

Look yourself in the face once in a while and don't gloss over the rank injustice you've worked on others. Admit that you've played the part of a cad. See whether after all you can't find some decency, some tenderness, some understanding in your heart which will enable you to play fair with the woman who loves you so much. If you can persuade yourself that your character needs improvement—if you will take steps toward that improvement—you may learn how to be a good husband yet and thus right the wrong you have done.

COMMON-SENSE TALK MAY BRING HUSBAND REAL UNDERSTANDING

L.W.S.: The knowledge that you can leave your husband and support the children should give you the strength and the confidence to demand better treatment at his hands.

It would be folly for you to suddenly up and leave him without making the effort to change his ways. You still love him, and therefore happiness for you must always include having him around. Why run away from the possibility of happiness without putting up a stiff fight to get what you want?

Perhaps in the past you've made spasmodic efforts to change your husband's habits. There have been tears, angry words, ugly scenes. But probably there has never been on your part a good, sensible explanation of why you're lonely—why you feel that life is passing you by—why you're becoming a stranger to the man you love best. Any thoughtless, more or less selfish man can often be appealed to with facts and common-sense where frenzied protests and harsh accusations leave him cold.

Try the common-sense method. Try to find out what his side of the story is. And tell him that you will have to go unless he is prepared to give you a square deal. As I said before, the knowledge that freedom and independence are within your reach will give you strength for the battle. Good luck to you.

Increase in Relief
In British Columbia*Joint Committee of Unemployed Councils and C.C.F. Describes Hardships in Vancouver—
Demonstration Sends Delegation to Cabinet

PRESENTING a workmen's petition in college language, a mass demonstration of the Unemployed Councils and the C.C.F. asked the Provincial Government, yesterday, to increase relief disbursements by some $6,200,000 a year, in addition to $7,573,295 now annually expended. The Government pointed to the impossibility of meeting the request, but promised sympathetic consideration of many anomalies brought out by a delegation of twenty-five men and women received by the Cabinet in a two-hour audience.

F of the formal submissions, a good deal of genuine heart-break was shown to exist at points under present relief arrangements. This involved the plight of young women facing first motherhood in penury; workless boys and girls leaving their homes rather than have their parents suffer; a progressive degree of undernourishment in homes where no work has been known for four years; the reduction of educated young people to "flop-houses" along the waterfront in Vancouver; and of many humble homes where "Santa Claus" has become a school-book myth for the children.

C.C.F. MEMBERS
Six of the seven C.C.F. members in the Legislature attended the meeting, including Rev. Robert Connell, leader of the Opposition; Mrs. R. P. Steeves, M.P.P.; Jack Price, M.P.P.; R. B. Swales, M.P.P.; H. E. Winch, M.P.P.; and E. E. Winch, M.P.P. Mr. Connell explained the C.C.F. members were holding a watching brief, but would not take part in the discussion.

Premier Pattullo and the full Cabinet, with the exception of Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, who is in the East, heard representations put forward by eight spokesmen, under Robert Leases.

While the Cabinet was in session, Roger E. Bray, chairman of the Joint Committee on Unemployment (which is composed of the C.C.F. Unemployment Committee, the Unemployed Councils, and other groups), introduced several speakers to a crowd of several hundred persons waiting quietly outside in the grounds.

PARADE ORDERLY
Later, the crowd formed into line and marched away. The demonstration was orderly throughout. City police rescued women and children from the line-up, urging them into the buildings, out of the bitterly chill North wind.

Before the Cabinet, the delegation asked that the Province assume all relief, increase the present scale by half, and make all disbursements in cash; with provision for food allowances of 45 cents a day for single persons, with $1.75 a week for shelter; adequate winter clothing, and the right to live at home, where possible; free hospitalization; medical, dental and maternity care; and an investigation of social agencies now assisting in distribution of relief.

Robert Leases, William Black, Mrs. Beaumont, J. G. Fitzler, Miss Mary McCormack, Miss Yvonne Gullard, Miss Anne Buchanan, Mrs. McCombie, Mrs. Colley, and a Mr. Bannister, of Fraser Lake spoke on behalf of married men and women, single men and single women, children and mothers. Two children read from prepared statements.

SUBMISSIONS NOTED
Much of the actual discussion turned on what was being done in Vancouver and other municipalities. At several points in the meeting, Hon. G. S. Pearson rose to point out that variations from the Provincial scale were not countenanced by the Government, and correction of abuses had been vigorously followed up. He expressed accord with requests for maternity care, and said that phase of the problem would be studied at once.

To grant all that was asked, Mr. Pearson continued, would require $13,773,295 a year, or $6,200,000 additional on top of $7,573,295 expended annually as at present. The Province itself was on relief to the extent of several million dollars this year, it was shown, further had been elected on a slogan of "Work and Wages," and money could always be found to service the debt of the Province, Mr. Leases rejoined. All the unemployed desired was work at fair wages, he added.

NATIONAL PROBLEM
Replying for the Cabinet, Premier Pattullo said unemployment was not as acute as it had been, and was a national problem in any event. The Province had no control over banking and currency, and however much it desired to institute a programme of work and wages, could not do so by itself. Debt refunding would come. The Government was doing all that could be done to care for the problems that existed, chief among which it regarded relief.

It was on that note the conference ended. Original plans seeking $60 cash monthly for relief recipients, which would have run to $24,000,000 a year in British Columbia, were not presented.

Outside of the buildings, Roger E. Bray, N. D. Campbell, David Williams, Matthew Shaw and Hans Kroeger addressed a waiting crowd, gathered in support of the delegation to the Government. Cheers from this group penetrated the Council Chamber as both meetings ended.

LEAVE FOR MAINLAND
Claiming that the left wing faction of the Joint Committee on Unemployment had assumed temporary control of the organization and had frustrated, to some extent, the efforts of the united movement in their demands upon the British Columbia Cabinet, here, yesterday, delegates representing the C.C.F. Unemployed Council, have left Victoria to take their case before the parent body at a meeting, in Vancouver, on Sunday.

While officials of the British Columbia Joint Committee declined to discuss the cleavage from the angle

There will be a special sitting of the Court of Appeal of the province, here, on Wednesday, December 12, when the court will hand down its judgment in the appeal taken before it early in the Vancouver sitting now ending, against the conviction of the three Indians of the Canford Reserve, who were sentenced by Mr. Justice Murphy, to be hanged for the murder of Constable F. H. Gisborne. The three Indians were defended by Stuart Henderson, while Hon. Gordon Sloan, K.C., Attorney-General for the province, appeared for the Crown.

The Indians, Richardson, Enes and Alex George, are brothers. Owing to the fact that the proceedings in the Court of Appeal at this late sitting have been very long delayed, the court has found it impossible to be able to give judgment until next week.

It is interesting to note in this regard the importance of the traffic census instituted by Mr. Okell some years ago. This census of pedestrian traffic in the downtown area is now looked upon by most merchants as a business guide, and great faith is placed in this count of traffic by those contemplating alterations in store fronts, and by those in search of the most advantageous locations in the business district.

The traffic count made last Summer disclosed a substantial increase in traffic practically throughout the whole length of Douglas Street, parts of Fort Street and Yates, and showed that Government Street was holding its own, no big decrease in the traffic being recorded at any one point.

PIPELINE EXTENSIONS TO SIDNEY PROPOSED

while he had always been identified with the tourist trade movement and was wholeheartedly supporting the new movement, he felt there was still another way to bring about prosperity for Victoria. The second method, he said, was the development of the entire Saanich Peninsula, agriculturally.

WATER NEEDED

He pointed out that during his term as mayor, the officials of the powder plant on James Island had approached the city on several occasions, seeking a source of water supply from the city's system. Since then nearly $40,000 had been spent digging wells on James Island, and at certain times of the year there was still a shortage. Sidney also was confronted continually with the prospect of a water shortage. This had been illustrated by the recent fire there, and was quite apparent during the Summer months.

A WATER BOARD
Under Mr. Pendray's proposal, a water board would be set up to influence and control the project. The city would provide the water to the water board on a rising scale of cost, so that the water board would at the outset be able to establish a strong sinking fund to retire the debt on the undertaking. Mr. Pendray suggested that during the first two years the city could give the water board the water. In the third year it could charge one cent per 1,000 gallons, and the price could be stepped up progressively year by year, or every two years, until, after the twelfth year of the undertaking, the city would receive six cents per 1,000 gallons for the water.

"We would have something to show for the money we are spending on unemployment relief, and we would get that money back in increased revenue from the sale of water. What is more important, however," Mr. Pendray stated, "is that we would be helping to develop the entire Saanich Peninsula, and we are vitally interested in that development. Only with the expansion of the Saanich Peninsula, commercially and agriculturally, can Victoria hope to prosper and grow," he asserted.

IRRIGATION RATES

"The water board could sell the water we supply at the regular irrigation rates. This would make it possible for farmers to increase their harvests of berries and small fruits. It would do more. It would make possible the use of thousands of acres of land now lying untillied. There is a great future for the Saanich Peninsula in the marketing of fancy produce," Mr. Pendray stated.

"When I was in England, I found there was an almost unlimited market for loganberries if we went after that market in the right way. By new methods of processing, the English market is not closed to our strawberries. Many other fruits and produce could be grown and marketed commercially, if we would only bring within the means of the farmer an adequate supply of water by which he may increase the productivity of his soil," Mr. Pendray asserted.

It is understood that since Mr. Pendray placed his proposal before Mayor Leeming, the matter has been given serious consideration, and there is a strong possibility that the project may materialize.

During the war she was night nurse in one of the London military hospitals. The nurses were housed some little distance away, and she generally boarded the self-same bus every morning when she came off duty.

One morning, after an unusually hard night, with nerves all on edge, she sank wearily on to the seat in the bus and simply could not prevent two tears from running down her cheeks.

The elderly bus conductor came over, holding her ticket. "Seen a lot of them out last night, miss?" he asked softly. She nodded. "Cheer up," he said. "They've gone to a better place." Then he added brightly: "Not but what I'd sooner 'ave you 'olding my 'and than me 'olding an 'arp."

One night some years ago a police inspector, who disliked reporting any of his men for breaches of discipline, paid a surprise visit to patrol. As he turned a corner he saw a pint of beer being handed out of a public house window to the constable on duty, who, on catching sight of the "guv'nor," slipped the tankard under his cape, gravely saluted, and reported, "All correct, sir."

The inspector casually mentioned that he had seen a couple of suspicious characters some distance back and asked the constable to walk that way with him.

Imagine the constable's feelings when, after half-an-hour's walk round his beat with the pint of beer under his cape, the inspector said: "I think you had better take that tankard back now. Good night."

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7 (CP).—The dispute between the Maritime Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association came to a head tonight as President E. A. Gilroy threatened to step in and "clean up the situation."

Many Winnipeg amateur hockey players have left for the Maritimes to play in the Commercial League, and several players who have been with the Maritime league since the start of the season, have been suspended by the C.A.H.A.

Mr. Gilroy said the Maritime league was defying the Dominion body and was not playing commercial hockey in accordance with the C.A.H.A. constitution. Properly registered amateurs were leaving themselves open to suspension by competing with ineligible players, he said.

The C.A.H.A. president's statement came after an exchange of telegrams with J. E. Wry, president of the Maritime branch of the C.A.H.A. He told Mr. Wry that by using players refused transfers by the C.A.H.A., the Maritime Mercantile League was not in accord with the constitution.

Europe Sees New Pitt in Roving British Diplomat*As Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden Is Power in International Councils—Might Become Premier

By J. G. OESTREICHER. LONDON.—With war alarms reverberating through Europe, there naturally is a preoccupation in old London with foreign affairs, and consequently the proceedings are bringing into highlight the activities of Captain Robert Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, roving representative of the Foreign Office and the "up and coming" protegee of powerful interests who would like to see him as Premier before he is much older.

Anthony Eden—he usually foregoes the Robert—has sometimes been compared to that brilliant, political genius of another day, the man whose overpowering and un-failing integrity eventually made him a tiresome figure to his contemporaries, William Pitt.

BOTH STARTED YOUNG
The comparison is based largely upon the fact that both Eden and

Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. His Star Is Reported Still in the Ascendant Over the Historic Mother of Parliaments.

Pitt got running starts in politics at an exceptionally early age. Pitt was twenty-two when he first won a seat on the red leather benches of the House of Commons, only twenty-five when he became Premier. Eden was twenty-six, a war veteran, when he entered the House.

There is also, however, the fact that both came from families long established in high places. Pitt's father was an earl and Eden's a seventh baronet. Another ancestor was the North Carolina Royal Governor Eden.

Between the two there is one outstanding difference. From the day he entered parliament, Pitt was an orator who blinded his auditors with his brilliance, who at an unbelievable tender age was able to seize upon and improve a favorite reform project of no less prodigious a parliamentarian than Burke himself.

Eden, on the other hand, has never been an inspired speaker. Now, in his comparative youth, he represents more of the "integrity" which identified Pitt in his old age than he does of the fire that characterized Pitt's youth.

He is, however, an exceptional political figure. Unlike Winston Churchill, who likewise started his political career with equal attributes of schooling and talent, Eden has remained always steadfast to his convictions, and never displayed any of the turn-about agility which gave England the impression Winston Churchill was too unstable to be Premier.

"THE CHILD"

By REGINALD H. WIGGINS, M.D., C.M., L.M.C.C.

FAULTS IN TRAINING

In the child brought to the clinic on Fort Street, whose mother said there was "nothing wrong," his training had been very largely ignored. First, it had been forgotten that during the pre-school period the most important and deepest impressions are made, which are greatly responsible for his future behaviour and conduct. Also that upon his training in childhood largely depended what the future adult would be—his character, his personality, his efficiency.

It is during childhood that we parents must guide, provide the example for, and train our children how to live. If one does not know and is honest with themselves and with their children, then they will seek advice from those who know. It will be too late in later life, when they join the ranks of the doers of nothing or the doers of evil.

The child was not only unhappy but dejected, and fearful and timid. "Don'ts," "can'ts" and "stops" had been showered upon him at all times and places. The lad had had little experience. How did he know what to do unless the parent would take the trouble to inform him?

Is it any wonder he was discouraged, fearful and dejected if everything he did was wrong and every inclination to be active and doing something was taboo?

Experience prompts me to say that I firmly believe that children have more "uncommon" sense than parents.

The child was obviously tired and depleted in vitality, yet no afternoon rest was allowed, and he remained up till nine and after at night, when seven o'clock should have seen him "between the covers."

Neither the home nor the parents fostered nor afforded the example for instilling that glorious trinity to wholesome living, Love, Truth and Right.

Rather than being loved, trusted, and suspected at every turn. We cannot expect our children to trust us unless we trust them. Trust breeds trust. Distrust breeds insecurity, doubt and fear.

UNITED CHURCH

QUILICUM BEACH, Dec. 7.—The United Church Young People's Society provided what may be correctly termed the most interesting evening of this season's activities on Wednesday, in a debate, "Resolved that the world's peace is nearer an accomplished fact than ever before." The affirmative was taken by E. J. Costain and Miss Caswell, and the negative by Craig Reid and H. Whittier. A well-balanced argument was presented by both sides, disclosing careful thought and preparation. Many friends, not members of the society, attended and thoroughly enjoyed the discussion. The decision was given in favor of the negative. W. Hackworth, E. Sanders and A. P. Smith acted as judges, the result being announced by Mr. Smith, who spoke appreciatively of the debaters, explaining that the evenly-matched teams made the decision difficult. On moving a vote of thanks to the debaters, Mr. Sanders paid tribute to the speakers and expressed the hope that another debate would be held. J. Golding presided and the Scripture reading was given by Miss E. Golding.

The instructors deserve a lot of credit, as well as the children, for the way they worked. First on the programme was "The Hula Dance," by Shirley Thulin. Jacqueline Duncan danced the Irish jig, and her sister, Gwendolyn, danced the Highland Fling, and for an encore, played on the accordion. Mrs. Davie sang. Then followed the playlet, "The Toy Shop." The cast was as follows: Father Tackhamer, Ione Crawford; Fairy Bright Eyes, Shirley Thulin; fairy attendants, Ann Painter and Jean Pearson; French doll, Mona Salvai; German doll, Frances McCarthy; Captain Fritz, Joan Painter; soldiers, Ted Idzi, Barry Taylor, Jim McNeil, Stanley Tuddenham, Walter Pearson and Harold Pearson; sailors, Ew Saarikko, George Masters and Alex Shelby; Jack-in-the box, Peggy Masters; clowns, Edna Erickson, Andrew Kallquist and John Painter; dolls, Margaret English, Alvina Thulin, Mary McNeil, Gladys McLean, Jacqueline Duncan, Gwendolyn Duncan, Evelyn Punkley, Jenny MacPunkley, Betty Kallquist and Beth Painter. All the children portrayed their parts very well, especially Ione Crawford in Father Tackhamer. The Fairy Dance, Minuet and the Cinderella Dance, taught by Miss M. Abercrombie, were very pretty. She also taught the sailors their dance, and the soldiers their drill. Mrs. K. Bell was the accompanist. Messrs. T. Hudson and Watt painted the scenes.

Church Rebuilt With New Creed

Anglican Edifice Once in Leeds Now to Become Roman Catholic Place of Worship

LEEDS, England, Dec. 7 (CP).—St. Philip's Church which stood in Wellington Street for more than 100 years, has now risen again at Middleton, a suburb of this great city of the clothing trade. The dark walls of the edifice, blackened by a century of city smoke, stand out well against the universal fresh red brick of new houses and shops.

BUILDING RESOLD

On entering on its new lease of life the church also changes its denomination—from Anglican to Roman Catholic. After it had been bought by the Leeds Corporation, owing to building plans, it was resold to the Catholic authorities. It was then removed piecemeal to the Middleton site. Here it is seen to greater advantage than in its old city setting, revealing fine points of architecture and carving which then escaped notice.

MASS AT HOTEL

At present the Catholics of the district, numbering about 1,000, near Mass in a room at the Middleton Arms Hotel. The mission is served by priests from St. Joseph's Hospital, but with the opening of the church, it is expected St. Philip's will become an independent parish.

Mr. J. Eckert has returned from Victoria Hospital, much improved in health.

NEW PERIL IN IRELAND

DUBLIN.—Irish farmers have often chased and been chased across bogs, but never before have they been chased by a bog. Now, a bog in Killanena, mountainous district in East Clare, is pouring down a mountainside in a huge stream of black mud, earth and stones. Families have fled from their homes. Crops have been destroyed. If rains continue, the whole bog will slide down the mountain and fill the valley, the farmers fear.

Carol Carefully Guarded

Bucharest fairly bristled with guns and glistening bayonets during the rites attendant on the recent opening of Parliament, and as King Carol and Crown Prince Michael rode in state through the streets of the city, to officiate at the beginning of the legislative session, every precaution was taken to guard them from the fate of the late King Alexander, and French Foreign Minister Barthou. King Carol was photographed here as he entered the Parliament Building.

Answer to Question No. 45—Three no-trumps.

After your support of hearts, your partner has deliberately switched to no-trump, showing a balanced distribution. Your hand is also balanced and has some values in every suit. It looks more than possible the combined hands will produce but nine tricks at any destination, so that the greater safety of a trump contract should be abandoned for the better chance of achieving a game in no-trump. Incidentally, your partner, if he deems it wiser, can always switch back to a heart contract.

FOLLOWING six months of labor in the district of Colindale, London, Eng., Rev. A. G. E. ## Dedicated on June 25, 1911

THE GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Lutheran work was begun in Victoria about 1890 by a group of Icelanders and by the German Iowa Synod. The English work was started with the organization of Grace Church on December 8, 1909, by Rev. William C. Draba, field missionary of the Pacific Synod, now a part of the United Lutheran Church in America. Special services today and tomorrow will mark the event. The present church building was dedicated on June 25, 1911. Regular services were discontinued in 1914, and it was not until 1920 that the congregation was reorganized and regular services resumed under the leadership of Rev. P. E. Baisler, field missionary for Western Canada. The present pastor, Rev. Theo. A. Jansen, has been here since April 1, 1924.

The Roman Catholic Church in Argentina, according to The New York Times, has received a tremendous impulse from the Eucharistic Congress, recently held in Buenos Aires. Many men who had been neglecting their religious duties have turned about face. Much of the new prestige enjoyed by the church has been caused by the government's active participation in the ceremonies.

Freeman Brown and Don McKinnon will be joint speakers at the regular meeting to be held under the auspices of the Victoria and District Association of the British-Israel World Federation next Tuesday at 8 o'clock, at the Foresters' Hall, 750 Cormorant Street.

Mr. Brown will give an address entitled, "The Abrahamic Covenant," to be followed by Mr. McKinnon, whose title will be "The Davidic Covenant." Both speakers have prepared their lectures so that there may be continuity throughout, and will contend that, since these two covenants were made unconditionally by God, they must be in full effect at the present time. Some proofs of the carrying out of these promises will be illustrated.

HONEST QUESTION TO BE ANSWERED

Boys' Problems Will Be Subject of Dr. A. S. Imrie's Sermon on Sunday Evening

"God bless the boys, with the problems and their questions," will be the general theme upon which Dr. A. S. Imrie will speak on Sunday evening at Emmanuel Baptist Church, under the title, "A Young Man's Honest Question." The morning theme will be "The Note of Triumph."

With W. H. Muncy as conductor, the choir's morning anthem will be "Grant, O Lord" (Holden), and the evening, "O How Amiable" (Maunders). George Guy will be soloist.

"God, Only Cause" to Be Subject

"God the Only Cause and Creator" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday. The golden text is: "The Lord is the true God. He is the living God, and an everlasting King. . . . He hath made the earth by His power, He hath established the world by His wisdom, and hath stretched out the heavens by His discretion" (Jeremiah x, 12).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "With Him is wisdom and strength. He hath counsel and understanding" (Job xii, 13).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Belief in a material basis, from which may be deducted all rationality, is slowly yielding to the idea of a metaphysical basis, looking away from matter to Mind as the cause of every effect."

Approach to 1935 Will Be Talk Subject

Under the auspices of the British-Israel World Federation (Canada), Inc., E. E. Richards will speak on Monday at 8 o'clock, in Campbell Building, on "The Wilderness Journey and the Approach to 1935," in which he will discuss the "hardness of the way" and the necessity of a buoyant hope and determination to go through to the end. In this connection he will answer the questions: (1) When may we expect the end? (2) Was the late Great War Armageddon? (3) Can the League of Nations prevent another world outbreak?

Luther, Translator Of Scriptures, Was Tindale of Germany

JUST 400 years ago England received her English Bible from the heart and pen of William Tindale. Just 400 years ago Germany received her German Bible from Martin Luther. Both were exiles, Tindale across the North Sea in the Continent, Luther hidden in the Castle of Wartburg in Franconia. Both standardized the Bible versions of their respective countries, and the German scholar gave his countrymen a new language for all time. Some account of when and how and where the German Bible was written will be told in tomorrow's issue.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH TO HAVE CANTATA

Maunders' "Penitence, Pardon and Peace" Will Be Rendered After Evensong Tomorrow

The services at St. John's Church for the second Sunday in Advent will consist of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, Morning Prayer and sermon at 11 and Evensong and the cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," at 7:30.

The pastor, Rev. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick, will preach at the 11 o'clock service. In the evening there will be Evensong, which will be followed by the beautiful devotional cantata entitled, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," by J. H. Maunders. The words, consisting of passages selected from Holy Writ by Rev. W. J. Bettison, will be supplied for the congregation, including the hymn, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," "Lord, In This Thy Mercy's Day," and "How Bright These Glorious Spirits Shine," in which the congregation joins.

Adopting Rev. H. R. L. Shepard's declaration regarding war, Rev. J. Lowell Smith, of Montreal, has issued a challenge to his fellow members of the United Church of Canada to sign the following pledge: "I renounce war and never again, directly or indirectly, will I support or sanction war." This action is endorsed in The New Outlook, of Toronto, by Professor J. Line, of Victoria College, Toronto.

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER LIV

Penelope said, later, to old John Leonard, "She is getting over it."

"Thank God . . . The two of them were sitting a little apart from the rest of the children, Joan was filling the children's plates with a second helping—'Drumsticks, drumsticks, who wants a drumstick?' she chanted, holding aloft a fork on which was impaled a brown morsel of deliciousness.

"It has been a hard experience," old John stated, "but she has weathered the storm. My heart was heavy when I thought she might marry him."

Just then Joan turned towards them. "There's loads of chicken. May I bring you some?"

She came bearing a heaped-up platter. "How do you like your waitress?" she demanded.

"She's too good to be true," John Leonard told her. "We have a feeling that you'll vanish suddenly and never come back."

"I shall always come back," she said with earnestness. "Perhaps I shall never go away."

It was at sunset that the children danced on the beach—the water was rosy with reflected light from the west, and the little folk in their sheer garments of green and amethyst and grey seemed to belong to the sky and sea as they skimmed across the sands like birds on the wing, or raced the white-capped breakers singing in time to the triple beat.

Joan was in fluttering blue, her feet and arms bare—a beautiful creature. Her friends, watching her, marveled. "How can she be content among us here," Evelyn said, "with her great loveliness and her great fortune?"

"There are times," said old John Leonard, "when money and beauty do not feed a hungry heart."

After the dance Joan wandered away from the others. A curve in the beach brought her to a great sandbank, and, sheltered from the west wind which blew cold as the night came on, she looked out over the sea. A single star hung in the sky. The world was at peace.

She was soothed by that vast serenity of sky and sea. She felt that it was good to be here after months of restless seeking. A year ago Aunt Adelaide had lived out her discontented days. And now she was at rest. A year ago they had been at Granitehead, and one morning she had walked into the dim book shop and had met Giles Armiger.

She wondered where he was to-night. She wished that he were here, that she might talk to him quietly on the sands. He was her friend—her more than friend? She did not know. She only knew that she wanted him beside her, to tell him the things which had happened since she had seen him in Paris. She wanted to tell him that she would never marry Drew. That she did not love him. That the last flicker of his fascination for her had died when he had showed her the dark pages of his life's story.

Well, perhaps some day Giles would come to her. If he did not, what then? The winter was close at hand, and she must be making plans for it. What plans? Should she shut herself up with Penelope in the snug house on the bluff? Should she hold these simple friends close to her heart and think them sufficient? Or should she go back to Baltimore, and, opening the great mansion, carry on the traditions of hospitality which belonged to it?

Giles was back in Granitehead. He had left Scripps and Amelle radiant in their new life. Yet his island as he entered it had not seemed lonely. He liked its solitude. He felt he could live there happily with his thoughts of Joan. Since he had known she was not to marry Drew, he had been released from the horror which had hung over him. He was like a man, who, sentenced to death, is relieved at the last moment.

He spent the days in his bookshop. In August there were many people from the hotel who welcomed him back, and who were glad to buy at high prices the rare and lovely books he had brought from overseas. But there were books he did not show them—books he had bought for the library which was some day to be Joan's. It was, he had decided, to contain a marvelous collection of the great romances of the ages. He began with an exquisite Adelard and Heloise, rebound in violet leather, hand-tooled—"I flattered myself," wrote Adelard, "that when I should see you no more you would rest in my memory without troubling my mind; that Brittany and the sea would suggest other thoughts; that my fancies and studies would delete you from my heart. But in spite of severe fasts and redoubled studies, in spite of the distance of 300 miles which separates us, your image, as you describe yourself in your veil, appears to me and confounds all my resolutions."

So Giles wished that he might write to Joan. Some day, perhaps, when the two years were over. And in the meantime here was an old Dante, shabby but priceless, to set beside the Adelard. Here, too, were Swift and his Stella . . . were there no romances without tragedy, without sin and sordidness, pain, despair? For stripped of the glamour which the years had cast over them, what of these lovers? Thinking the world well lost—for what? Love?

Oh, not love as he and Joan would know it. On the shelves these old romances would glow with their mad passions—but he and Joan—tenderness and truth, fire-light on children's faces . . . constancy, devotion; yes, and a touch, too, of the madness in these old books . . .

He wanted to be with her . . . to hear her voice . . . to touch her hand. Yet—to see her now would be to show his heart, and Drew had his word of honor!

So back to his books again . . . to his quiet evenings on the island; to Dilly now and then for supper and a chat afterwards while William tended the light.

Dilly was frankly curious about Joan. "You're still in love with her, Giles?"

"Of course," "And she isn't going to marry Drew Hamill?"

"No."

"Then why don't you marry her yourself?"

"You go too fast, Dilly. Suppose she wouldn't have me?"

"Any woman would have you if you wanted her."

He laughed. "You flatter me."

She knew he was keeping something back. "Where is she now?"

"I'm not sure."

"And you haven't tried to find out?"

"No."

"Why not?" Then penitently, "Oh, Giles, I haven't any right to be asking these things. But I want you to be happy."

"I am happy."

And that was all she could get out of him. After he had gone she talked it over with William. "Perhaps they are engaged and aren't telling anybody."

So August ended and September came, and in a week Labor Day would end the season at the hotel.

Giles, facing the winter, found himself suddenly restless. After all, why should he not travel? Bridge the months between his meeting with Joan with adventure? If he stayed on his island he would have for company only Jose and Margarita, and now and then Dilly and her William, or the young doctor and his wife.

Yet—what did he need of company, when he had his dreams of Joan? He would read and write and go back and forth to his shop.

So day after day he was busy among his books. Night after night he sat by his glowing fire, seeing in his visions of the future.

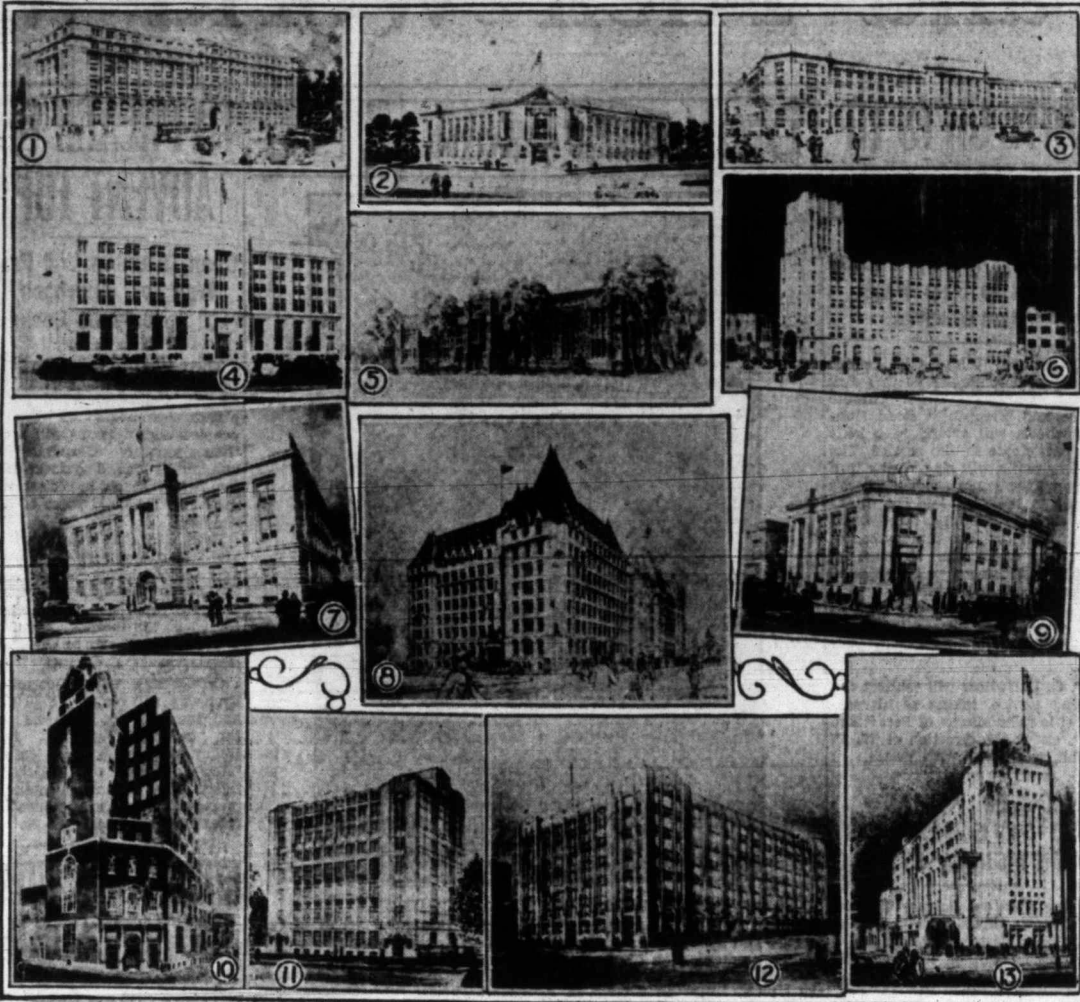

Dilly scolded him. "It's no life for a man. What are you thinking of, Giles?"

"What would you have me do?"

"Oh, wake up! There is all the world before you—there's too young to stagnate."

Dilly was getting supper. She had hot biscuits in the oven and now and then she peeped at them. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes

To Be Constructed as Public Works

Here are plans for public buildings to be constructed by the Federal Department of Public Works, under the Public Works Construction Act of 1934. About $40,000,000 has been set aside by the Government for Public Works, which includes cost of these buildings. The buildings shown above are: (1) Custom House, Montreal, Que.; (2) Public Building, Moncton, N.B.; (3) Customs Building, Toronto, Ont.; (4) Public Building, Hamilton, Ont.; (5) Administration Building, Experimental Farm, Ottawa; (6) Public Building, Winnipeg, Man.; (7) Public Building, Fort William, Ont.; (8) Departmental Building, Block "D," Ottawa, Ont.; (9) Postal Station, Notre Dame de Grace, Que.; (10) Public Building, Halifax, N.S.; (11) Postal Terminal Building, Ottawa, Ont.; (12) Postal Terminal Building, Montreal, Que.; (13) Public Building, London, Ont.

bright. November had come, and a light snow was blowing down from the north. Small Susan in blue rompers, crooned a song to old Peter, who sat beside her on the kitchen floor. Old Peter was happy with the lighthouse family. In Summer he had found companionship with Dilly's hens. And in Winter he sought the warmth of the snug little house, and was adored by Susan.

"It's no way for a man to live," scolded Dilly, as she split the browned hot biscuits and laid them on a big blue platter alone. "Haven't you any ambition, Giles?"

"For what?"

Dilly turned and looked at him. "To get on in the world."

"What do you call getting on?"

"Making a success of yourself."

"I am a success," confidently. "I have money enough, so why earn more? I have an occupation I love. I have a house . . . which needs only one thing to make it heaven."

Dilly's busy hands were still. "What does it need to make it heaven?"

"Joan."

Window Displays

Offer Big Range Of Travel Choice

Side by side, the windows of two transportation companies on Government Street provide a striking contrast in travel appeal. The window space of the Canadian National Railways is displaying signs of snow and ice, suggesting the chilliest of atmospheres, as it invites the passerby to ride its rails to the land of the frosted Christmas tree; while next door, in the window premises of the Pacific Steamship Lines, smiles a scantily-clad figure of a bathing beauty in a setting of palms, calling attention to the desirability of a sojourn in a locality reached by its "Sunshine Special."

In a little wayside station down in Alabama an old Negro shuffled to the ticket agent.

"Ah wants a ticket for Trivinia," he said.

The agent consulted the timetable and the atlas and the company records. Finally he asked, "Where is Trivinia? I can't find it."

"Why," said the Negro in amazement, "dar she am, standin' right over there!"

What Today Means

"SAGITTARIUS"
If December 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p.m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a.m., from 4:45 to 6:45 p.m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p.m.

On this December 8, if you are wise, all forms of practical jokes, horse-play and undue familiarity will be abstained from if trouble would be avoided. Letters written on this date should bear satisfactory results. Be cautious about making rash promises or offering your services to perform a difficult task. You may be asked to endorse or in some way guarantee a friend's financial obligation. Unless you are in a position to pay, should your friend be unable to, it might be advisable to give this matter considerable thought before assuming this responsibility. There is a possibility that a remark made in an attempt to be humorous may be taken seriously, so be careful how you handle words. A social engagement might result in a contact which will bring about a great deal of happiness. The verbal expressing of your appreciation for a friend's thoughtfulness displayed by a friend will not be amiss, when your attention is called to it. Married and engaged couples, as well as those in pursuit of matrimonial bliss, will avoid quarrels if they cheerfully agree to abstain from doing something they know is a pet aversion of their companion. If a woman and December 8 is your birthday, you may be inclined to force your religious and political opinions on others. You will gain in popularity if you refrain from trying to make people adopt your own line of reasoning. You have a great deal of personal magnetism, which, if directed in the right direction, may bring gratifying financial results. Your ability to realize that hastily-formed opinions are often erroneous. If a man and December 8 is your natal day, you may progress more rapidly if you do not insist too much on having your own way. You will gain much more in both a social and business direction if instead of using dictatorial methods, tactful ones are employed. Literature, preaching, banking, and politics have vast possibilities to be taken advantage of. Lake Erie recalls the fact that this species of bird was nearly exterminated in North America in 1916. Then the regulations of the Migratory Bird Treaty between the United States and Canada stepped in and, given protection, the birds increased in thousands. Whistling swans arriving at the Miner place live among the geese and live principally on the clams there. Jack Miner makes these birds his own particular care.

Counsel Is Retained By Government in Gypsum Queen Case

Dominion Authorities Will Endeavor to Extradite Captain Freeman Hatfield, Now in Custody, Who Is Fighting Return to Canada

MANCHESTER, N.H., Dec. 7 (AP).—The Canadian Government today retained counsel to prosecute Captain Freeman Hatfield, charged with defrauding the Dominion Government of $71,276.72 by allegedly obtaining reparations for the sinking of his vessel, the Gypsum Queen, off the coast of Ireland during the Great War.

The Crown now contends the vessel sank during a storm and was not sunk by a torpedo.

Ralph M. Davis and John P. Carleton, of the law firm of McLean, Davis & Carleton, of Manchester, said they had been retained by the Dominion Government and would confer with British Consular officials in Boston, today.

READY TO FIGHT
At the same time, Allie J. Connor, Hatfield's counsel said he would be assisted by a prominent Washington attorney, who, he stated, was an expert in international law, in defending Hatfield. He would not disclose his name. Connor declared they would fight extradition to the highest courts.

Hatfield, in an interview at Hillsborough County Jail, where he is held without bail, gave his version of the sinking, and reiterated his innocence. He insisted the vessel was sunk by a torpedo in July, 1915.

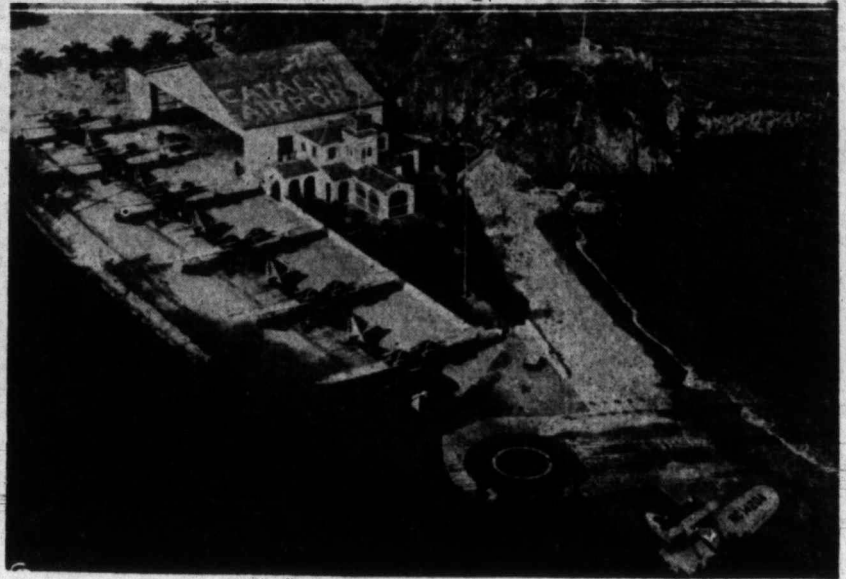

Hatfield said:

"As I came on deck the mate called my attention to a speck on the water some distance off the port bow. We studied it a second or two and saw it looked like a periscope. We kept our eyes glued on it. The next thing we knew we saw a white streak come at us—that was the torpedo's wake. She hit us a little ways forward on the port side. There was a terrific shock and the vessel rolled over to port and foundered."

TOOK SOUNDING
"I took a sounding and ordered the pumps into action, but the torpedo had torn a gaping hole in her, and the vessel filled rapidly. As she rolled over, the foremast and mainmast came down, leaving the main topmast hanging in the rigging and the jib boom dangling at loose ends. We soon saw there was no saving of her, but with that lumber in her hold and on her deck, it was plain she would float for hours. Within a few hours the United States liner Cyrmic came up and took us off in boats. There was only eight of us. We were set ashore at Liverpool and I reported the sinking at once to port authorities."

Hatfield was arrested early this week on his farm in New Hampshire by a United States marshal, local officers and a corporal of the Royal

World's Smallest Airport at Catalina

On Santa Catalina Island, off the coast of Southern California, is the world's smallest airport. The photograph shows six United States Army amphibian planes after they came to a happy landing on their last flight before class graduation at Rockwell Field, near San Diego. The planes served as training ships for twenty-two student flyers. The unit of six planes was from the advanced Aviation Training School at Rockwell Field, under command of Captain W. T. Larson. The flight was in command of Chief Aviator N. Longfield, of Langley Field, Virginia.

Canadian Mounted Police. The latter said he had been hunting Hatfield for two years.

The Crown charges he conspired with Senator Hance J. Logan, who acted as his counsel, to obtain reparations fifteen years after the vessel sank.

DISCUSS NEED OF NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Duncan Board Waiting Report on Sites—P.T.A. Proposes By-Law for Gymnasium

DUNCAN, Dec. 6.—Duncan Consolidated School Board had a lengthy session last night, the chief topics of discussion being the urgent need of a new high school and the proposal of the Duncan Parent-Teacher Association that a by-law be also submitted for a needed gymnasium.

Trustee Castle reported for the committee on the new high school. The plans being considered call for a two-story structure, costing $15,000, of which the Government would bear one-fifth of the cost. No definite action was taken, last night, pending a further report on proposed sites. A delegation from the P.T.A., headed by S. R. Kirkham, and including John Dick and Messrs. Hodson, Blanchard and D'Arcy, of the teaching staff, put forward the P.T.A. plan. The board was of the opinion that the time for the gymnasium by-law was inopportune, but agreed to attend the next meeting of the P.T.A., explain their views, and should the still desire the by-law, advise in view of the present situation, to put the matter up to the electors.

The contract for re-roofing the Elementary School was let to O. C. Brown. High school fees were fixed at the same rate as last year. A grant of $5 was made to each teacher to be spent on the school children at Christmas. Hugh Savage, M.P.P., is providing a free picture show for the school children on December 11, which the trustees were invited to attend. The finance committee was authorized to pass and sign December cheques before Christmas.

SCHOOL PLAYS WELL PRODUCED

Packed House Enjoys Triple Entertainment Provided by Duncan Pupils

DUNCAN, Dec. 7.—Standing room only was available at the K. of P. Hall, last night, when the Duncan High School presented three one-act plays. R. Lendrum, of the High School staff, was producer of scenes from "Twelfth Night" and of "Riders to the Sea," and Miss Isabel Dee was producer of "The Dear Departed."

Those taking part in the "Twelfth Night" scenes were Rona MacDonald as Olivia; Gerry Leeming as Maria; Gordon Purver as Malvolio; Arthur Mellin as Sir Toby Belch; Henry Mottishaw, Sir Andrew Aguecheek; Jack Davie, Fabian, and Jim Mainguy as Feste. These scenes were very well done, the pupils being letter perfect in their lines, and the acting of Jim Mainguy and Arthur Mellin was outstanding.

The tragedy, "Riders to the Sea," was done by Joan Bateman as Maura; Jean Pollock as Cathleen; Mary Bone as Nora and Ian MacDonald as Bartley. The pupils were more at home in the comedy produced by Miss Dee, "The Dear Departed," and kept the audience amused throughout.

The performers in this were Doreen Watson as Mrs. Slater; John Bateman as Henry Slater; Muriel Jarvis as Victoria; Isola Campbell as Mrs. Jordan; Clive Hoskins as Ben Jordan and Larry McLaughlin as the Grandfather. R. Hodson was responsible for the scenery, Irene Fraser and Mary Savage for the costumes and Alan Gwyn for properties.

Ladysmith Preparing to Start Work on Improvement Scheme in the City

LADYSMITH, Dec. 7.—The regular meeting of the City Council was held in the council chamber, last evening. A. W. Griffith, administrator of the Unemployment Bureau in the Province, notified the council, last week, that from December 1 the city would have to pay 40 per cent of relief cost for unemployed within the city limits.

At the week-end, Mayor W. W. Walkem, Alderman Giovando and the city clerk met the Hon. George Pearson, Minister of Labor, and impressed on him the fact that the city was in no position to carry the responsibility of relief. The minister said that other municipalities in similar circumstances had been placed on the same basis and the decision could not be altered.

The council has to face the facts as they are, and the money to be used will be borrowed from the Government. The amount will be about $750 per month. A by-law is being prepared to allow for the borrowing of the necessary money.

There will be no change in the present system of registering, etc., other than that 40 per cent of unemployed will be apportioned to work in the city on an improvement scheme which is to be drawn up.

It was reported that as yet no concrete plan had been formed with regard to Christmas hampers, but Constable Bryant has again consented to supervise any work in that connection. The City Council donated $25, and Mayor Walkem, $20, to start the hamper fund.

Uncle Sam has decreed that the gob's white bonnet shall go the way of the dodo and other extinct items. Seaman Ellis Peters is pictured aboard the flagship U.S.S. New Mexico, with the new type hat that will replace the old familiar headpiece. It closely resembles the British fashion.

JUDGE HOWAY GIVES LECTURE AT QUALICUM

QUALICUM BEACH, Dec. 7.—A large audience of over eighty assembled in the Community Hall on Wednesday, to hear Judge Howay, of New Westminster, address the Qualicum District Canadian Club on "The Spanish Exploration of the Pacific Coast."

General N. E. Money was in the chair, and Rev. C. Finnemore kindly operated the lantern. Illustrating his talk with slides of contemporary maps and prints, Judge Howay traced with a wealth of detail the story of the Spanish occupation of Vancouver Island from the South, and of the settlement at Nootka Sound, which was the base of the earliest explorations of British Columbia waters by the white race. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker for his interesting address.

BRITISH-ISRAEL MEETING

The regular monthly British-Israel meeting was held in the Community Club, Qualicum Beach, on Thursday, when Colonel V. Wright, of Vancouver, spoke on "The Appointment Place." H. F. Ponsford was in the chair.

The visiting team came from a coal-mining district, and they were brawny fellows. The home team were not equal to their opponents' rough tactics, and were faring badly.

Time after time little incidents were passed over by the referee that were not strictly in accordance with the book of rules.

At last one of the home supporters could stand it no longer. "I say, ref," he bawled, "do you only know a foul when it wears feathers?"

Food Matinees at Theatres Will Be Held on Dec. 15

BOTH the Boy Scouts Toyshop and the Gyro Hamper fund campaign will benefit from the food matinees to be presented at the Dominion and Capitol Theatres on Saturday morning, December 15. Admission to the theatres will be by food or toys only, the former going to the Gyro Club and the latter to the Scouts.

CONSERVATIVES HOLD CONCERT AND DANCE

The Victoria Ward Three Conservative Association held a social evening, in the Conservative Rooms, Campbell Building, last night. The programme opened with a concert, after which refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed. The artists who contributed to the programme were Miss J. Thomson, Miss E. M. Crocker, J. Ramsay, J. Bell, Alex. Wilson, R. B. Coddie, Mrs. Florence Neils, Robert McVie, Mrs. McVie, James McVie, and E. H. Bragg.

A very short man entered the big gymnasium and nervously approached the instructor. "I want you to make my arms long," he whispered. "Do you think you can do it?"

The instructor looked puzzled. "But they are in proportion!" he exclaimed. "Why ever do you want them altered?"

"I know they're in proportion," said the short man, "but they're too short for my purpose. I can't hold my own at the Anglers' Club."

At the Theatres

"GAY DIVORCEE" AT THE CAPITOL

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers Play Leads in Brilliant Musical Revue

For sheer novelty, sensational spectacles and peals of laughter, "The Gay Divorcee," opening today at the Capitol Theatre, should earn the gratitude of all moviegoers.

Many a day has passed since Hollywood producers have released such a thoroughly hilarious story of romantic complications; and many a year has gone into oblivion since movieland has produced, as this picture does, musical spectacles so intriguing and interesting. It is a new triumph for Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, while the comedy work of Alice Brady, challenging that of Edward Everett Horton, who plays opposite her, is a revelation.

This R.K.O.-Radio comedy, a challenge to the immensely popular former Astaire and Rogers vehicle, "Flying Down to Rio," has every audience appeal imaginable. Astaire again proves himself to be a welcome new screen type, a romantic light comedian with boundless charm, nonchalance and whimsicality. Miss Rogers is excellent, even amazing, in her dances with Astaire, in which she rivals the grace of this man who danced his way into the hearts of New Yorkers and Londoners.

They introduced a new dance called "The Continental," that is seemingly more provocative than their former success, "The Carioca."

EMPIRE Harry Berry's smart Theatre New York and Chicago revue, "Sunkist Vanities," came to Victoria yesterday, and opened its week-end engagement at the Empire Theatre before three large and appreciative audiences. It will show again three times today, Monday afternoon, and at a midnight performance, Sunday.

The girls' band, something quite different from anything seen in Victoria in many years, is featured with this revue. Mary Keith, while not one of the world's leading feminine violinists, is nevertheless PLAYHOUSE Reginald Barlow, Theatre who served as a colonel of a combat regiment in France during the Great War, again donned spurs and clanking sabre to play the role of a Confederate colonel in Marion Davies' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Operator 13," which is now at the Playhouse Theatre.

COLUMBIA For the first time in Theatre his career screen Joe E. Brown has worn a high silk topper. This takes place in his latest First National picture, "A Very Honorable Guy," now at the Columbia Theatre. As Feet Samuels, a thornier gambler, whose phenomenal luck brings him more wealth than he knows what to do with, he invests in a wardrobe, including the high hat that would knock an eye out.

DOMINION Invariably, when the Theatre conversation of any set of people drifts toward motion pictures, the name of Henry B. Walthall is mentioned. Although he has been on the stage and in pictures for almost thirty years, and has appeared in many featured and starring roles, it is his characterization of the Little Colonel in D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" that is looked upon as one of the finest portrayals ever to reach the screen. His latest screen contribution is the role of Dr. Ammon in the monogram version of the Gene Stratton-Porter classic, "The Girl of the Limberlost," now at the Dominion Theatre.

GYRO CAMPAIGN IS PROGRESSING

Mrs. J. W. Fordham Johnson Sends Cheque for $100 to Hamper Fund

An added impetus to the Gyro Hamper Campaign drive was given yesterday when Mrs. J. W. Fordham Johnson, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, sent a $100 cheque to campaign headquarters with her patronage to the local appearance of the Home Gas Optimists at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Monday, December 17.

Ticket sales for the performance are progressing well, but there still remains a large number to be sold. These may be secured for a nominal sum from Gyro Campaign headquarters at 804 Yates Street, at the corner of Yates and Vancouver Streets. This office may be reached by telephoning Empire 1127.

The complete proceeds from the show will be turned over to the Gyro fund to provide hampers for needy persons this Christmas in Victoria and surrounding districts. Aside from the general admission charges, special rates have been offered on boxes, and many generous Victorians have contributed money for boxes, as well as a tidy cheque for the fine work being sponsored by the Gyro Club.

ONE OF MANY EVENTS However, the show is merely one of the many events planned to make this year's campaign the most successful of any conducted here.

The hamper fund has been developed to a fine art, and this statement may be verified if a visit is paid to the Yates Street headquarters. There will be no last-minute trouble due to doubling up of hampers, because a modern Gyro filing system has been installed.

More than 1,000 of the 1,500 cartons soon to be filled with Christmas fare are piled high in the centre of the headquarters. The remainder will be sent along shortly. Holly berries and leaves will lend a colorful and seasonal aspect to the cartons. Each will be inscribed with the name of the club and will contain everything that goes to make a Christmas hamper everything the name implies. Packages of tobacco, the gift of the Imperial Tobacco Company, and sufficient candy for every child, will be among the good things included in the hampers.

MASSED PACKING Sorting of the goods for the hampers will begin early next week, and within a few days a thoroughly modern and efficient packing plant will be established. Packing will be carried out in a manner similar to the assembling of a well-known automobile. Each man will be responsible for the packing of a certain article in a specific spot in each hamper.

Three telephones have been installed to assist the office staff in carrying on their work. Empire 1127, Empire 1128 and Empire 1129 are the calls to be made for all those wishing to contribute. Every charitable body in Victoria is working through the Gyro organization and there will be no omissions or duplications.

Not a single penny of the donations received will go outside the hamper campaign. The whole administration and office arrangements being cared for, all workers donating their services.

LEGAL PROBLEMS EVER TO FORE

Businessmen Are Faced by Commercial Rules Every Hour of the Day

R. B. Mathews, addressing the Real Estate Board, yesterday, in Spencer's dining-room, on the subject of commercial law, took the unique plan of manifesting to his hearers that commercial law was something about which businessmen could not be indifferent. He showed that from the moment they entered upon the duties of the day, they were brought into close relationship with commercial laws whether they liked it or not.

Dealing with the subject, Mr. Mathews said that when the businessman sat down to his breakfast in the morning, he was reminded of the fact that the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Dominion under the B.N.A. Act was intimately associated with the articles of food that were on his table. The Dominion acts dealt with the purity of the food which he ate. There was protection afforded in the commercial laws with the prevention of adulteration of food, and with the seeing that proper weights and measures were enforced.

On his way to the business house, there entered into his movements the fact that regulations were laid down for common carriers, and that due care had to be observed under penalty for disobeying the law in these respects. The passenger, himself, was also under the necessity of observing due care.

LAW OF SERVICE

The arrival of the businessman at his office was governed as to time by rules regarding the observance of the laws respecting masters and of operation, and early treatment, the patients are not interrupted in their occupation. When the disease is well advanced, or serious symptoms are present, they must, however, be put at rest.

(3) There is no pain or shock and no great inconvenience, if the condition is treated reasonably early.

(4) Patients with advanced disease or serious heart complications may be treated without shock, and, if radium is used, need not even be removed from their rooms.

(5) There is no risk of death from the treatment.

(6) There is an absence of scars, or any hard white lumps of scar tissue.

The treatments are given every three weeks, and the number of treatments is from four to six. If there is no improvement after about six treatments, other methods should be used.

It can thus be seen that there is no need to delay treatment in gottle cases, as the X-ray treatment gives results where the patient dislikes or cannot undergo operation.

In a little provincial theatre an opera was being produced. In certain passages a trumpet should have been blown off-stage for effect. Great was the conductor's consternation when, as the first climax came, there was no sound of the trumpet. Very annoyed, he continued. "Yes. You can't find a bloke who'll turn his back on his beer for a minute these days."—Smith's Weekly, Sydney.

Record Field Will Tee Off in Golf Tourney at Miami

Close to 300 Brilliant Shot-Makers Will Face Barrier in $12,500 Classic—Two Sections to Play on Alternate Days—Veteran Walter Hagen Among Starters

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Swamped by a torrent of 292 entries, officials of the fifth annual Miami Biltmore Open announced today the field for the $12,500 golf tournament will be split into two sections for the Saturday start. The sections will play the first two rounds on alternate days, and for the first time, eighteen links' headlines were seeded in the pairings to give each section its share of the stars. Drawn to head the list in the first section—teasing off tomorrow and with the second round deferred until Monday—were the Walter Hagen-Johnny Golden-Johnny Farrell threesome, the Wiffy Cox-Billy Burke-Phil Perkins combination, and the Tommy Armour-Tom Creavy-William MacFarlane trio. Sunday's beginners will be headed by the Olin Dutra-Victor Ghezzi-Bobby Cruickshank threesome, the Jimmy Hines-Johnny Revelta-Bill Mehilhorn threesome, and the Al Watrous-Ed Dudley-Horton Smith trio. These acts will rest Monday and play again Tuesday.

WALTER HAGEN

It was also announced that the conclusion of play Tuesday, when the entire field will have completed the first thirty-six holes, the "pursuit squadron" will be paired to low eighties and ties.

Together with the full "bombing squadron" and the amateur contingent, these survivors will play the third round Wednesday and the fourth and final round Thursday. A play-off, if necessary, will be played Friday.

NET PLAYERS TO TOE MARK

English Tennis Body to Prohibit Amateurs Commercializing Game

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Lawn Tennis Association of England today passed a resolution, which if approved by the international federation, would limit the outside activities of amateur players.

The association instructed its delegates to the next meeting of the international body to introduce a measure prohibiting amateurs from accepting money for appearing in moving pictures, permitting their name to be advertised as the author of any book or article unless the actual author or the giving of instructions by correspondence or in the press.

The latter clause hits Dorothy Round, Wimbledon champion, who gave a series of instructions last summer in a London paper. A resolution, which would prohibit amateurs from receiving remuneration for writing newspaper articles, was defeated by a close vote.

AUDIENCE AGREE
Sir Samuel Hoare, president of the association, said "we cannot let it be supposed by anyone that there is any kind of utility between the association and professional players."

To which the audience responded with a ringing, "Hear, hear."

Tommy Marvin, former professional fighter and Steele's second, jumped into the ring after Rentrop announced his decision, and began a fight with the referee that brought police into action.

Police later escorted the second referee and the two wrestlers to a nearby police station.

The arrests were made in accordance with a recent police edict banning "belligerency" among athletes.

NORTH SHORE RUGBY PLAYER IS SUSPENDED

Member of All-Blacks Draws One Week's Rest for Rough Play

VANCOUVER, Dec. 7 (CP).—Suspension of a player, rare occurrence in English Rugby, was handed out by the disciplinary committee of the Vancouver Rugby Union's board of control, tonight, when Glen Smith, of North Shore All Blacks, was suspended for one week.

The suspension followed last Saturday's league fixture between the All Blacks and Marpole, when Smith and two Marpole players were sent off the field for roughness and talking back.

Maurice Grehan, referee of the game, told the disciplinary committee that Smith had been warned previously for charging in the line-outs.

W. Boston was warned for roughing a North Shore player, his previous clean record saving him from more drastic action.

N. Beaumont, the other player sent from the field, was reprimanded for what the committee called his "exchange of compliments with an opposing player."

BRENTWOOD STARS CAPTURE WOMEN'S DOUBLES LAURELS

Misses N. Woodward and M. Sluggett Prove Sensation of Annual Shuttle Meet by Great Victory—Jean Campbell Retains Women's Singles Title—Prizes Presented

Another chapter in Victoria's badminton history was written yesterday evening, at the Willows courts, with the crowning of the 1934-35 city champions, after a tournament that has been featured by almost daily upsets. The finals produced plenty of good shuttle play, with the women's doubles match, in which Miss Noni Woodward and Miss Muriel Sluggett, young Brentwood team, defeated Miss Jean Campbell and Miss Audrey Tremayne, strong Willows pair, holding the spotlight.

The playing of the youthful and aggressive Brentwood doubles team has been one of the outstanding features of the successful tournament, and their victory in the final culminated a series of upsets that started with their initial fixture. Miss Muriel Sluggett, the blonde-haired player of the team, is, perhaps, the more aggressive, but the remarkable shots and splendid style shown by Miss Woodward combines with her partner's style of play to make them a strong combination.

Opening with their speedy aggressive style of play, the Brentwood players took the first set by the one-sided score of 15-3, but dropped the second set, 11-15. In the final set the eventual winners gained a 13-3 lead, but Miss Campbell and Miss Tremayne gradually sliced this large lead and brought the score to 14-13 for their opponents. As the large gallery sat almost motionless and waiting for anything to happen, Miss Sluggett finished the match with a terrific smash which Miss Campbell was unable to return. It was a splendid match and a popular victory.

RETAINS CROWN
Earlier in the evening Miss Jean Campbell won her second straight singles crown by defeating Miss Doreen Swayne, in straight sets, with scores of 11-7, 11-6. The champion played steadier throughout and scored many times with well-placed shots. Miss Swayne, on the other hand, lost a number of points by driving the shuttle out of the court with her powerful smashes.

R. Bagley and D. Davis sprang somewhat of an upset in winning the men's doubles final from R. A. Phillips and J. A. Phillips in straight sets, the scores being 15-9, 15-11.

The mixed doubles was a keenly-contested three-set match, in which Miss Hughes and J. A. Phillips defeated Miss G. McCall and H. Bleasdale. The newly-crowned champions won the first set, 15-6, but the second and third sets were bitterly fought, with the titleholders dropping the second set and winning the last.

In the exhibition singles match, Eric Leney, clever Duncan player, defeated Des Bleasdale, newly-crowned city champion, 15-10, 15-9.

The handicap events produced some keen competition and plenty of smart shuttle play.

Mrs. MacDonald, wife of Major MacDonald, Willows Club president, presented the prizes at the conclusion of the meet.

H. B. Wilner was chairman of the tournament.

Cotton Content With Cup Ruling

BRUSSELS, Dec. 7 (AP).—Although Henry Cotton, holder of the British open golf championship, would be happy to play for Great Britain against the United States in the Ryder Cup matches next summer, he does not feel the rules of the competition should be changed just to permit him to play.

He is barred under his rules as now written because of his residence in Belgium. He is a professional at a club here.

"I feel no request for a change in the rules should be made," he said, "because it would create too dangerous a precedent. The Ryder Cup would become an international contest instead of a match between Great Britain and the United States. However, I wish to leave the settlement of the question entirely with the British Association. If they obtain a change in the rules and invite me to play, I'll be happy to do so."

SILVER SPRING

The signs which indicate good beer are quite unmistakable. Pleasant flavor, stimulating strength, and a thick, creamy head that stays on top of the glass. Test Silver Spring Lager this way and you'll find it scores 100 per cent.

Stocks Soft as Bonds Advance At Wall Street

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP).—Buyers picked their stocks carefully today and shied away from most of the recent bull favorites.

Deprived of aggressive support, the share list generally settled a little lower.

Turnover dropped to 1,018,940 shares.

United States Smelting slipped 4 points. American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound and some of the gold issues rose fractionally to more than a point.

National Lead climbed to a new peak at 170, up 2-1/2.

Senior issues of Purita Publishing, American Bank Note, American Chain, City Ice, Goodrich Tire, Jones & Laughlin Steel and Union Pacific got up 2 to about 3 points. Radio "B" resumed its advance into new high ground, ending more than 2 points higher at 45-1/4.

United States Steel, Montgomery Ward American Telephone, Santa Fe and General Motors moved a little lower.

Losses predominated in the Canadian list. Nickel preferred, Power Corporation of Canada and St. Regis Paper preferred, registered losses ranging up to 2-1/2 cents. Fractional losses included C.P.R., Ford of Canada "B" and Walker-G. & W.

The bond market was not so active today, and some of the recent gains were restrained by profit-taking, but the trend of prices was still upward.

Foreign loans were quiet and moderately mixed.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"A LITTLE LOWER THAN THE ANGELS"

"Whence this delicious expression, which is so valuable for satirical purposes, 'a little lower than the angels' - or 'he,' of course?"

"A little lower than the angels" - we are familiar with it in the satirical uses to which our reader refers as well as in its serious sense as a quotation. For in their origin the words have no light connotation. That is in the New Testament, in the eighth Psalm, in which "God's glory is magnified by his works, and one of your papers."

by his love to man." We find the saying as follows:

4. "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?"

5. "For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels and hast crowned him with glory and honor."

For the third week in succession the dentist's surgery maid reported that there was a man in the waiting-room who declined all invitations to see the dentist. "Perhaps he's nervous," said the dentist. "I'll go and see him."

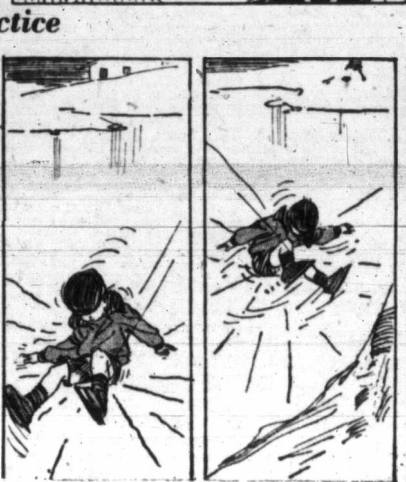

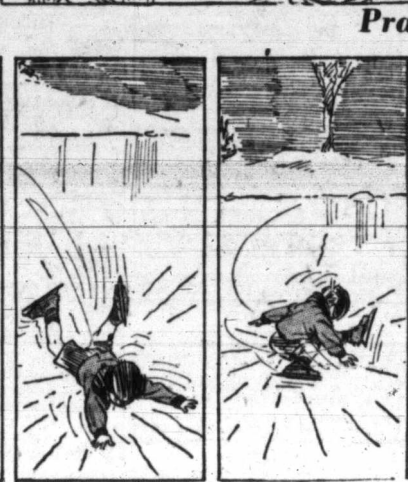

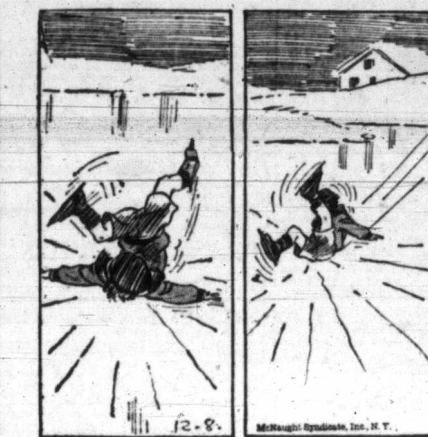

So he entered the waiting-room and asked if he could be of any service.

"No, thank you," replied the visitor, blandly. "I just drop in because, ye see, I'm reading a serial in one of your papers."
